Larue is a 1977 graduate of Sikeston High School and was a finalist in last year's Miss Sikeston contest. She is 5 feet 3 inches tall, with brown eyes and blonde hair. She enjoys swimming, water skiing and fishing. She plans to attend The University of Mississippi this fall and wants to major in marketing. (Daily Standard photo)

Sikeston's future power plans await Supreme Court ruling

Sikeston's proposed 235 megawatt power plant is now in the hands of the Missouri Supreme Court, following a hearing Friday morning in Jefferson City on a lawsuit challenging the legality of the city's plans to sell the plant's excess power.

If the court should rule that Sikeston cannot sell the power to 11 other cities, the future of the large power plant will be placed in jeapordy.

The suit was brought by Charles Mitchell of Sikeston and Don C. Diven of Trenton. A group of private utility companies including Missouri Utilities and Ark-Mo Power Co., were asked by the court to submit briefs on the case and joined Mitchell andDiven in the suit.

The REA Electric Cooperatives and the Public Counsel for the Missouri Public Service Commission submitted briefs supporting Sikeston's position.

Prior to the hearing, city officials were expressing confidence over the outcome.

Apparently nothing happened during the hour-long hearing to change their minds.

"I thought it went just as anticipated," said former city attorney Manuel Drumm, who represented the city. "There were no unforeseen problems.

Drumm said he hoped to hear the court's decision within six to eight weeks.

"In other bond cases where we've had public interest involved they have given opinions in six to eight weeks," he said.

The suit arose from Sikeston's plans to sell the excess power from the steam plant to 11 other Missouri cities. The income from the sale will repay the bonds on the large plant.

The suit challenged the legality of the sales contracts on grounds that the city was building the plant just to sell power.

The city's position was that it is building the power plant to provide power to the city until the year 2,000 and that it will have excess power to sell until then.

The contracts were also being challenged on whether or not the cities have the authority to obligate themselves to buy power over long periods of time.

A court decision on the matter is required before the city can sell the bonds needed to pay for the plant.

The city plans to start work on the 235 megawatt steam plant this fall.

Former SeMo man drowns

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Kevin Menz, 24, formerly of the Illmo-Scott City area, drowned Friday in Green's Bayou at Houston, Tex.

Born May 17, 1953 at Cape Girardeau, he had been working for the National Marine Service at Houston for one-year.

Survivors include: His father, James Menz of Bostwick, Fla.; his mother, Mrs. Stella Menz of Cape Girardeau; two brothers, Michael and Keith Menz of Cape Girardeau; and one sister, Mrs. Georgia Heise of Cape Girardeau.

Services were conducted at 1:30 p.m. Monday in Ford and Sons Funeral Home with the Rev. Robert Schumacher pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church at Illmo, officiating.

Burial followed in Lorimier Cemetery.

Thieves busy here

Several thefts were reported to the Public Safety Department over the Memorial Day weekend.

Burglars took a large number of items from the Quality Stamp store, in the Mid-towner Village sometime between midnight Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

Entry to the building was obtained by breaking out a plate glass window in the front of the building. The monetary value of the goods was not available.

In other thefts: Billy J. Gadberry, 205 Adams St., reported the theft of a citizens band radio antenna worth $33 between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday from the parking lot of Apostolic Pentecostal Church on William St.

Larry Tucker, 209 Broadway St., reported the theft of a battery from his car between 10 p.m. Sunday and 6:10 a.m. Monday while the car was parked in the Harts Bakery parking lot. The battery was valued at $30.

In two late reports, public safety officers said three golf carts taken Wednesday night or Thursday morning from the Sikeston Country Club were recovered near the club. The carts were badly damaged.

A CB radio worth $100 was taken Friday morning from a car parked in the Kingsway Mall parking lot. The radio belonged to Robert Eugene Eads of Marston.

Fire destroys vacant home

Public safety officers from the fire division were called six times Monday night and early today, according to the Public Safety Department.

At 8:38 p.m. Monday an electrical wire fell across the road at 1509 Washington St., and firemen were called to standby the scene.

At 8:28 p.m. Monday firemen extinguished a buring trash barrel at 225 Petty St.

At 9:24 p.m. firemen were called to extinguish lightning - caused transformer fire at 614 Delmar St., and a fire in a television set at the P. H. Hunott home, 516 William St. The fire was caused by a short- circuit in the television.

At 9:59 p.m. firemen extinguished a burning couch, rug and clothing at the Bobby Williamson home. Fire damage was confined to the couch with sm .ke damage to the house. The cause of the fire was not listed. Officers said there were four fires burning in the house when they arrived.

At 4:22 a.m. today the fire division assisted the Miner Fire Department in fighting a house fire at 217 Harris St.

The fire destroyed the vacant home, owned by O'Neal-Nunnelee Real Estate. Cause of the fire was not listed.

Search begins for cause of Kentucky nightclub fire

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — The hunt for bodies has given way to a search for clues to the fire that in moments consumed the Beverly Hills Supper Club, killing at least 160 diners and nightclub patrons.

Late Monday, a giant crane began ripping down the brick and wood facade, finishing what the fire started.

It revealed the original colonial face of what had been one of the Midwest's slickest nightspots, perched on a 17-acre bluff across the Ohio River from Cincinnati. Officials got their first look inside the Zebra Room, just above where the fire is thought to have started in a basement boiler room area.

They saw rubble but no bodies. Red Cross volunteers standing by sighed in collective relief. It had been their job to put charred corpses into body bags before transport to a makeshift morgue in a nearby Fort Thomas, Ky., armory.

Southgate Fire Chief Dick Riesenberg said he is "absolutely certain" the rubble will yield no more victims.

Kentucky Highway Patrol Commissioner Ken Brandenburgh said families and friends had reported 58 persons missing by Monday. Of the 160 bodies found, 118 have been identified.

"I don't know yet how many of the still unidentified dead will be on that missing list, but the fact that there are more people listed as missing than there are unidentified bodies does not necessarily mean there are still some victims left in the club," he said.

"Some of those reported missing may simply not have made contact with their relatives as yet."

Brandenburgh, who is coordinating the investigation, added, "You can't expect us to come up with any possible explanations until at least the end of the week." The cause of a 1970 blaze that destroyed an older club on the site was never determined.

Investigators have tentatively ruled out arson and earlier theories that the fire started in a basement generator or leaking oil tank, but have no explanation as to why the fire spread so quickly.

Some survivors said the flames flashed through air conditioning ducts and broke out through all the walls simultaneously.

"They told us to leave. We got up. We noticed smoke, and then, wham, fire all around," said a survivor from the Cabaret Room, where singer John Davidson was to have performed moments after the fire routed a crowd of at least 1,000 Saturday night.

A charge of overcrowding in the Cabaret Room is being investigated. Most victims died trying to leave that room as smoke billowed in.

There had been reports that exit lights went out just as flames were discovered. Fire officials denied the blaze started in a faulty electric generator.

State fire inspector John Bramlage of Fort Wright, Ky., confirmed early today that the club's owners had complied with his order of six months ago to install auxiliary lights.

Mississippi river claims C'ville man

CARUTHERSVILLE — Draging operations are continuing today in efforts to recover the body of Donnie McCaig, 30, of rural Caruthersville, who apparently drowned at 1:15 p.m. Monday in the Mississippi River, about four miles south of town.

A spokesman at the Pemiscot County sheriff's Department today said McCaig and his family were on an outing at the river when a daughter, name and age unavailable, got into deep water and called for help. McCaig went to aid the girl and was able to get her back into shallow water.

In some manner McCaig reportedly fell or slipped back into deep water. He reportedly was seen once about 50-feet up stream from where he went under the water.

Searching operations started about 2:30 p.m. Monday, but were terminated about dusk. Today's search is being conducted by a Blytheville, Ark. rescue team and members of the Caruthersville rescue team.

Moit jury selection starts today

BENTON — A jury is scheduled to be selected today in Scott County Circuit Court to hear testimony in the murder trial of Manuel Allen Moit, 24, of Bertrand.

Circuit Judge Stanley A. Grimm of the 32nd Judicial Circuit has been designated as special judge.

Moit is charged with the first degree murder of James Edward "Jamie" Helms Jr., 23, of Sikeston, whose body was found Aug. 8, 1976 in a drainage ditch near Diehlstadt.

6 die in area accidents

A Lilbourn youth died Monday from injuries received in an accident Saturday and five out-of-state residents were killed early today near Charleston. The highway patrol reported moderate injuries to four other persons and two minor injuries in four separate accidents on area roads over the Memorial Day weekend.

The death toll on area roads totals 23 for this year, excluding the five- fatalities today, compared to 47 during the same period last year.

James Raidt Jr., 16, of Lilbourn died at 5:29 p.m. Monday in Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff where he was taken after the accident at 5:20 a.m. Saturday on Route T, six miles west of Lake Wappapello.

Receiving moderate injuries in the accident were passengers John Raidt, 20, of Lilbourn, Sherry Sorrell, 21, and Terry Woodrow, 24, of Poplar Bluff and Larry Gadis, 18, of Lilbourn. All were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff. Billy Wilson, 19, of Lilbourn, driver of the northbound car, and another passenger, Ricky Brock, 17, of Lilbourn received minor injuries and were taken to Doctor's Hospital.

The patrol reported the Wilson car, traveling at a high rate of speed, attempted to pass another vehicle and ran off the road, traveling 619 feet before striking a tree.

Raidt, a shoe factory worker, was born July 25, 1960 at Lilbourn to James and Betty Bush Raidt, who survive, of Lilbourn.

Other survivors include: One brother, John Raidt of Lilbourn; three sisters, Betty L. Hughes of Portageville and Kathy and Linda Mae Raidt of Lilbourn; and paternal grandmother, Iva Mae Raidt of Lilbourn.

Services were conducted at 2 p.m. today at Ponder Funeral Home in Lilbourn with the Rev. Randy Thomas of Sikeston officiating.

Burial followed in Mounds Park Cemetery near Lilbourn.

Five out-of-state residents, reportedly from Illinois and Tennessee, were killed about 5:45 a.m. today on Interstate 57, one mile east of Charleston. Another passenger was critically injured and taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospita. at Sikeston.

Names and addresses of the dead were withheld, pending notification of relatives, the patrol said.

Apparently the accident occurred when the driver went to sleep and the car struck an overpass pillar.

Obscenity law struck down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let stand a decision by Missouri's highest court striking down that state's system of prosecuting obscenity cases under municipal ordinances.

The court refused to review a ruling by the Missouri Supreme Court that all obscenity cases must receive a jury trial at the first judicial level.

The ruling invalidated a system in which obscenity defendants charged with violating municipal laws first receive a non-jury municipal court trial. If convicted by the presiding judge, the defendant has the right to appeal and receive a brand new trial — by jury — in a county circuit court.

Robert J. Darby was charged in 1973 with violating a Kansas City ordinance by displaying allegedly obscene movies, a "petty offense." Before his conviction by a municipal court judge, Darby argued that he was entitled to a trial by jury.

The judge sentenced Darby to 90 days in jail. On appeal, a Jackson County Circuit Court jury convicted Darby after a new trial and sentenced him to 120 days in jail and a $500 fine.

After a series of appeals, however, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled that Darby should have received a jury trial first and that his equal-protection rights had been violated by having to go through a non-jury trial. It freed Darby.

Appealing that ruling, City Attorney Aaron A. Wilson argued that Missouri law makes possible a trial by jury on the second tier of the state judiciary.

He said that requiring a jury trial leaves city prosecutors with two options: do not prosecute under municipal ordinances on obscenity or provide jury trials in municipal courts "at substantial cost to the taxpayers."

Wilson said the Missouri court's ruling that obscenity cases alone of all petty offense must be tried by a jury "will have far-reaching national consequences in many jurisdictions other than Missouri."

The Missouri Supreme Court based its ruling on decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1973 and 1974 which, it said, required juries to determine what is obscene according to contemporary community standards.

12 SEMO projects listed in bill

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U. S. Reep. BILL D. BURLISON (D-Mo.), who serves on the House Committee on Appropriations, today announced that his Committee this morning reported out the Public Works Appropriations Bill for Fiscal Year 1978.

Numerous Tenth District Corps of Engineers projects are included in the proposal. Burlison noted that the Corps of Engineers is the President's arm in the area of Public Works. The Corps makes recommendations to the President and he, through his Office of Management and Budget, makes a final determination as to the funding to be included in the President's budget, which is submitted to the Congress each January.

If the President does not recommend funds in his budget, the only way they can be obtained is by Congress, acting through its Committee on Appropriations, adding on these funds.

"Upon being named to the Committee on Appropriations a few years ago," Burison said, "I immediately made the critical drainage and flood control problems in my district of utmost priority and during the past few years, I have been fortunate in getting flood control and drainage projects approved and added to the budget. It was encouraging in perusing the President's budget this year to see that funds to continue some of the ongoing programs were budgeted by the President. Again, I was able to add additional projects."

Burlison indicated that the following items were included in the House Committee bill just approved.

FEWER STUDENTS, HIGHER COST

The number of students enrolled in the nation's public elementary and secondary schools has been going down little by little every year since 1971, when enrollment reached a peak of more than 45 million. This year, it is 43,721,000.

Population forecasts indicate that the decline will continue to 1983, down to about 40 million; then a gradual rise will begin.

Interestingly, despite this 2 per cent decline in public school enrollment, total expenditures for public elementary and secondary schools in the same period have soared — from $40.7 billion in 1969-70 to $67.1 billion in 1975-76. This represents an increase of 65 per cent.

Something else has been going up — the state and federal share of the education dollar. Before World War II, local governments provided over two-thirds of all support for public schools, the states furnished less than one-third and federal support was negligible.

By 1975-76, reports the Tax Foundation, the state share had risen to 44 per cent and the federal contribution was 8 per cent, but the share financed by local governments had fallen to 48 per cent. The figures are national averages; there are wide variations from state to state.

In New Hampshire and North Dakota, for example, the state governments provide less than 15 per cent of total school funds, contrasted with Hawaii, which finances 93 per cent, with the federal government supplying the remainder.

Expenditures per pupil are also vastly different from state to state. New York, which spends $2,179 per pupil, is at the top of the scale. Arkansas, which spends $881, is at the bottom. Tennessee, Missouri and Louisiana also spend less than $1,000 per pupil.

No matter how the statistics are sliced, however, Americans, through their state, local and federal taxes, are spending more and more to educate fewer and fewer children. Even the states on the bottom of the scale have registered increases of from 55 to 71 per cent since 1969.

DIPLOMATIC IMPUNITY

Foreign governments owe the District of Columbia $1,070,000. That's the value of some 37,905 unpaid parking tickets issued to diplomats between Jan. 1, 1970 and last March 31.

According to the district's Department of Transportation, the Soviet embassy has accumulated more unpaid parking tickets than any other embassy by far, with 12,270. Distant runners-up are the Israelis,with 4,885.

There's not much chance this $1 million- plus will ever be collected, since diplomatic immunity exempts foreign embassy personnel from the obligations of ordinary mortals. New York City has the same problem with the cars of foreign officials assigned to the United Nations. For cops in both cities, it is usually an exercise in futility to tag an illegally parked diplomatic vehicle.

The surprising thing, though, is that despite diplomatic immunity, the foreign embassies in Washington do pay about 20 per cent of the tickets slapped on their windshields. Compared with the record of repayment of World War I and World War II debts to this country, that's not a bad percentage at all.

KOREAN UNCERTAINTY

It is difficult to see what is to be gained by President Carter's plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea over the next four or five years, except for some possible savings in the defense budget that would quickly be swallowed up elsewhere.

Only the U.S. military presence in Korea, currently at some 38,000 combat-ready men, has kept the peace there for the past 24 years, a peace punctuated by recurring "incidents" along the 38th parallel truce line.

For once we are in agreement with the generals, one of whom was so opposed to the plan that he publicly differed with his Commander-in-Chief. American withdrawal could lead to another war with North Korea, warned Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, chief of staff of U.S. forces in Korea. For his pains, he was recalled home and "reassigned."

Singlaub is no Douglas MacArthur, of course, and South Korea is far stronger militarily than it was in 1950. But it was the mistaken belief of the North Koreans in 1950 that the United states no longer considered South Korea to be within its sphere of concern — a belief encouraged by our own State Department — which helped bring about the invasion and the war that has never really ended.

In the absence of any evidence that the North Koreans have abandoned the dream of completing their frustrated conquest of the South — every indication, in fact, points to the contrary— we could well be inviting history to repeat itself.

OVER THE STORE

Concerned about the stagnation of center cities, the minister of construction and town planning in West Germany has come up with a plan he hopes will bring people back to such areas.

He is proposing legislation that would require builders of office buildings to include in their plans at least some apartments in the same buildings.

We don't advocate legislation like that, but the basic goal has some merit. Memphis has one good example of how that would work — the apartments that tower over a department store on the Mid- America Mall. They are well occupied, while some of the downtown office buildings are having trouble finding business and professional tenants.

Actually, it is an adaptation of the old idea of living over the store. We used to build a lot of buildings like that 50 years ago. Why not again now?

SEAL SLAUGHTER

In a world in which many animals and birds have already been eliminated, through thoughtlessness or cupidity, conservationists at this season are trying to spread the word that one more species, the harp seal, is threatened with extinction. March is the month when the annual seal hunt occurs in eastern Canada. The objects of the hunt by Norweigian and Canadian sealers are the harp seal pups, which are bludgeoned to death and skinned shortly after birth so that their white furred pelts can be used to trim boots and hats and to make toys and trinkets.

Although the gravity of the threat to the harp seal's survival is in dispute, there can be no doubt that the animal's numbers are being greatly depleted. The Canadian government this year set a kill quota of 170,000 seals, but each year the quota is exceeded because of ineffective policing. Despite the minimum importance of the animal hunt to the Canadian economy, the Canadian government declined to act on a 1972 recommendation by a government advisory committee that sealing be phased out by 1974.

Since a 1972 U.S. statute barring the importation of a baby seal skins has not had the hoped-for effect of stopping or drastically reducing the slaughter, the pressure of world opinion seems to be needed. The issue is simple enough: Why destroy one more wild creature, that belongs in the ecosystem, for what amounts to frivolus purposes? — St. Louis Post-Dispatch

GROWTH PREDICTIONS NOW A FACT

When the Cannon resevoir project first started, those who were supposed to know about such things predicted the ara would have an increase in population as a result.

That prediction is now a fact.

A recent unofficial census of Monroe County shows it now has around 400 more people than in 1970 when the last official nose count was made.

This has happened in spite of the fact that dozens of farm homes in the basin were bought by the government and the owners moved elsewhere.

The growth is an indication of what we may expect from now on, and one that will add to the economy of the entire area.

The county population now stands at slightly less than 10,000.

HE DIDN'T "DISCOVER" AMERICA

More and more, textooks are telling students that Columbus didn't "Discover" America- that people from several other nations were the first to see our shores long before Columbus was born.

And from archeological discoveries, it appears that travelers from Asia who walked across the Bering Straights, then a land bridge, were the real discoverers, and that the original settlers, the Indians, were descended from them.

Then there is the unauthenticated legend or story that two Indians got lost in the Atlantic several centuries before Columbus, ended up on the shores of Europe and thereby "discovered" it, instead of a European discovering America.

Ho hum.

But, with all these goings-on, isn't it about time we took that "discovery" title away from Columbus?

Meanwhile, a last- minute survey shows that if the election were held tomorrow, last Friday would be Halloween.

MISSOURI'S CONSUMER HOT LINE

When he was campaigning for the office of Missouri Attorney General, John D. Ashcroft announced that if elected he would install a consumer fraud hot line, enabling citizens to make inquiries about fraud and to report possible fraudulent practices which they had encountered. At the time he made the announcement, we applauded Ashcroft's idea, although we were later scolded by the Democratic nominee, who said he had already proposed the same thing. It appeared that 1976 was the year for consumer hot lines.

Despite his campaign pledge, we remained somewhat skeptical that Ashcroft would follow through on the hotline idea, given the usual post-election performances of most politicians. But sure enough, the state's Attorney General announced the installation of the service just the other day. The toll-free number is 1-800-392-8222.

Once again we applaud Ashcroft's concern with this continuous problem and voice the belief that the installation of the hotline will be of considerable assistance to citizens of Missouri who have been victimized by fraud, or at least believe they may have been. General Ashcroft's hot line is one more link between Missourians and their state government and we welcome it. — The Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Internal Revenue Will Stop Using Informants

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Internal Revenue Service has relied upon confidential, often controversial informants to provide the leads that have helped convict mobsters across the country. It was also an informant who supplied the inside information that cracked the biggest corporate fraud case in tax history against the Fruehauf Trailer Company.

But the informant program is now in jeopardy. For two years, the General Accounting Office has been secretly studying the use of confidential informants and undercover agents. The final report, according to our sources, will criticize the program.

Former Commissioner Donald Alexander became disenchanted with informants after two disagreeable experiences:

1: Under Operation Sunshine, an undercover agent collected $54,961 to eavesdrop on bar conversations in Miami and Ft. Lauderdale. The operation produced allegations, none of which could be substantiated, against 913 people.

2: Under Project Haven, an undercover informant stole records of a Bahamian bank where wealthy tax evaders stashed their money.

Internal Revenue sources have defended both operations. But Alexander reacted by angrily slashing the funds for informants. The forthcoming report could lead to further cutbacks. Any more cutbacks, insiders warn, could cripple federal law enforcement efforts.

Footnote: The study was ordered by the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation reportedly at Alexander's instigation.

Grand Nepotism: Chile's dictator Augusto Pinochet, who prides himself on his reputation for financial integrity, has been accused of trying to throw his nephew a multimillion-dollar deal.

A confidential commercial document indicates that the dictator designated his sister's son, Rafael Saavedra Pinochet, to negotiate a $100 million loan for Chile. Such a deal could bring the middleman a finder's fee of over $1 million.

Sources in the banking community believe Chile sought a 10-year loan at a moderate interest rate from European banks. But apparently, the dictatorship settled for a $125 million loan at less advantageous terms from a consortium of Canadian, Latin American and New York banks. We understand the nephew did not profit from it.

But a Bolivian import-export firm, now called Medibol, Ltd., but formerly known as Rodur, tried unsuccessfully to arrange the earlier, $100 million loan.

In a confidential letter, dated March 12, 1976, the company notified its clients that it had just "established an exclusive commercial arrangement with Don Rafael Saavedra Pinochet, son of the sister of the president of chile, who will collaborate actively within our firm.

"Obviously, he is in contact at the highest levels of the neighboring republic (Chile)..." the letter stresses. "He has asked me to inform you, by the confidential order of President Pinochet himself, that the government has the greatest and most urgent concern in contracting with European banks for a $100 million credit."

The letter details the terms of the loan and then adds: "Mr. Saavedra Pinochet would be ready to help us, as well, on any other transaction now in progress or to be initiated within the commercial area among Spain, Bolivia and Chile."

We reached Medibol, Ltd., in LaPaz, Bolivia. A spokesman acknowledged the letter was authentic and said Pinochet's nephew is still associated with the firm.

But Chilean Ambassador Jorge Cauas, who was the finance minister at the time of Chile's frantic scramble for money, told us that only the finance minister could negotiate such a loan.

The respected Cauas insisted, therefore, that the letter's assumptions were wrong. He also assured us that the Chilean president did not permit his name to be used for financial gain by anyone. Cauas said he had negotiated the loan and, therefore, was personally aware that no Pinochet kin was involved. Other embassy sources insist Pinochet has little if any contact with his nephew.

Sparse Christmas: For federal agencies, Christmas comes in the spring when they make their annual pilgrimage to Capitol Hill to tell the appropriations committees what they want in their stockings. Invariably, they ask for more than they really need, on the theory that Congress will cut back their budget requests.

Yet contrary to all normal behavior, the Health, Education and Welfare Department is begging the Senate Appropriations Committee to reduce its funding.

In an amazing private letter, Secretary Joseph A. Califano, Jr., has pleaded with Subcommittee Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., to "eliminate" most of the $1.8 billion in increases already granted by a House subcommittee.

"I ask the subcommittee to reduce the amounts in the bill," wrote Califano. "We ask the Congress to join us in the steps that must be taken to hold down federal spending if we are to balance the budget by FY 1981."

THE SANS SOUCI AT HIGH NOON

WASHINGTON— As if we didn't have enough to worry about in Washington, it is now rumored that the Sans Souci Restaurant is no longer the "in" restaurant since the Carter crowd arrived in town. The nation's two leading newspapers, Women's Wear Daily and The National Enquirer, have both reported that the Sans Souci is out and a Carter appointee wouldn't be found dead here.

This came as a terrible blow to the elite clientele who eat lunch there every day. Those of us who have been dining through five Administrations have always considerred the Sans Souci the power center of the country.

We believed that no important decision was made in the government without it first being discussed at our restaurant over rognons de veau and Dover sole, served with either a respectable Mouton Rothschild or a chilled bottle of Pouilly Fuisse.

High-priced Washington lawyers and higher-priced Washington lobbyists did their business under the watchful eyes of high-priced columnists and television commentators.

The Sans Souci became synonymous with big government and power politics. KGB agents used it to plant stories on unsuspecting newspapermen. World Bank officials met with ministers of finance to negotiate multimillion-dollar loans. Heads of conglomerates used it to plot strategy against SEC regulations. Contractors worked over Army and Navy procurement officials to land contracts. New tax shelters were designed on the white tablecloths.

There was no doubt in anybody's mind that if you wanted to make a deal you had to come to the Sans Souci.

The publicity that the Sans Souci was not the "in" restaurant any more hurt us all. Every day we sat at our tables waiting, hoping, praying that someone from the Carter Administration would walk through the door.

The real problem for all of us was that no one knew what a person from the Carter White House looked like, and even if he did come there we wouldn't be aware of his presence.

Just the other day someone came in the restaurant in a leisure suit and sneakers. We all became excited because he was talking to Paul, the maitre d'hotel, with a Southern accent and he didn't seem to have a reservation.

"It could be one of them," a lobbyist at the next table said to me excitedly. "He seems to be shuffling."

"Carter people don't shuffle," I said. "They have style. Didn't you read Pat Caddell's memo?"

"I hope Paul gives him a table. Wouldn't it be terrible if the first Carter person ever to come to Sans Souci couldn't get in?" he said.

"Poor Paul," I said. "He's in a quandary. He has no way of knowing if the guy's a cotton farmer from South Carolina or Carter's national security adviser for Southeast Asia."

"I'd take a gamble," a lawyer from the Hogan & Hartson law firm said, "and let him in. We can't just sit here and wait forever."

"If we don't get someone from the Carter Administration soon," a defense contractor moaned, "our lunches will not be considered deductible."

Paul finally decided to give the man a table.

"Who is he?" we asked the maitre d' excitedly.

"He's a Carter intern working in the mail room," Paul said.

"The White House is back!" a columnist cried. "We can be considered an 'in' restaurant again."

"I knew they couldn't stay away," the lobbyist chortled. "No matter what Carter vowed, he needs the Sans Souci more than we need him."

I asked Paul for a telephone. When he brought it to the table I immediately dialed Women's Wear Daily and said to the editor, "Hold the presses!"

Today's news in brief

Porpoise plea to be entered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A California Republican is hoping to convince the House to go easy on the porpoise when lawmakers debate legislation this week to increase the number of marine mammals which tuna fishermen may kill. The tunaporpoise issue is at the top of the agenda as the House returns Wednesday from a fiveday Memorial Day recess. On Thursday, lawmakers turn their attention to President Carter's proposal for a Department of Energy.

Luggage allowance increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just in time for summer vacation, new rules are going into effect permitting travelers on most overseas flights to carry a lot more luggage. Beginning Wednesday, free baggage allowances on most flights will be based on the number of pieces a passenger is carrying and on their size rather than on weight, the Civil Aeronautics Board says.

Soviet arms test a failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's latest test of a satellite-destroying weapon, conducted despite an appeal from President Carter for a ban on such weapons, ended in apparent failure, U.S. intelligence sources believe. A Soviet interceptor satellite went past its target satellite at a distance of less than 50 miles in the test last week, Russia's first in about five months, the sources say.

Dutch to offer exchange

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — The Dutch government is trying to get the South Moluccans holding some 60 hostages to give up their guns as well as their prisoners in exchange for a flight out of the country, a Justice Ministry spokesman said today in The Hague. Officials said the Moluccans offered Monday to release their prisoners if they were supplied a plane to take them to another country.

Mrs. Carter plans visit

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Rosalynn Carter visits a former U.S. sugar plantation now owned by the workers today following talks with Jamaican officials about their economic problems, Cuba and the weather. The U.S. First Lady, after spending the first day of her seven-nation Latin American tour in official receptions and private meetings with government officials, gets out in the countryside to talk to cane cutters who have become manager-owners of the third largest sugar plantation on the Caribbean island.

Javits warns Third World

PARIS (AP) — Sen. Jacob Javits warned the Third World today to react "with reasonableness" to the Carter administration's offers or risk losing the sympathy of the American people. The New York Republican and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D+Conn., both defended the administration against complaints from underdeveloped nations at the 27-nation "NorthSouth Conference on International Cooperation that it is offering them nothing new to solve their basic economic problems.

Alleged rapist arraigned

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A man Kansas City police say may be the "pillowcase rapist" has been arraigned in Jackson County magistrate court on charges of rape, robbery and burglary.

Robert L. Fellows, 26, Kansas City, was ordered held without bond in the county jail Monday following his appearance before Magistrate Leonard S. Hughes.

Fellows was arrested Sunday after a man under police surveillance allegedly broke into a midtown apartment, raped a woman there and stole some money and personal property belonging to the woman.

Hughes entered a plea of not guilty for Fellows and said the case would be presented to the Jackson County grand jury Friday.

Police said they were investigating Fellows in connection with 13 rapes that have occurred in the city since last June. In each case, the assailant placed a pillowcase over the head of his victim during the attack.

421 die during holiday

At least 421 persons died on the nation's highways during the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

The Associated Press count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight in each of the times zones Monday.

The National Safety Council had estimated that 400 to 500 persons could die over the 78-hour holiday period.

In 1968, a record 629 persons were killed during a four-day Memorial Day observance.

Last year 442 persons were killed over the same weekend, which is the unofficial beginning of summer.

Lobby group makes request

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale is being urged to hold up signing a pay increase for state lawmakers until a conflict of interest measure is approved by them.

Common Cause in Missouri, a group calling itself a citizens' lobby, wrote Teasdale last week advising him to delay signing the bill. Under it, lawmakers' salaries would be increased from $8,400 per year to $15,000, and it would go into effect in 1979.

The conflict of interest measure, which was approved earlier this year by the House, is awaiting Senate consideration, but is far down its agenda.

"With only three weeks left in the legislative session, the chances of enacting the ethics bill are slimmer every day," said Amelia Delaney, Common Cause state direcgtor.

The Senate could only reach the bill by suspending its rules to take it out of order, a procedure seldom resorted to in the tradition-bound Senate.

"House leadership justified higher salaries by endorsing a legislative code of conduct," she said. "The Senate apparently has made salary increase their first priority and has allowed the conflicts bill to lage behind at least 30 other bills of less significance."

Court refuses canal case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to immediately consider whether the Carter administration has the constitutional power to surrender control of the Panama Canal Zone to Panama.

The justices turned down a request by six members of Congress and a U.S. citizen living in the Canal Zone that the court expedite consideration of their appeal from a lower court.

The appeal charges that the President and secretary of state have no power to enter into a treaty giving away control of a U.S. territory. It claims that such power is reserved specifically for Congress by the Constitution.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington last month upheld a lower court's ruling that the suit was not "ripe for judicial determination."

In seeking a quick review by the Supreme Court, the congressmen argued that not only is the constitutional question "ripe," but that it may be rendered irrelevant very soon because of the Carter administration's commitment "to a completed treaty proposal which will deliver the Canal Zone or some major part of it to the Republic of Panama within the next few weeks."

The court's action today does not mean the court never will consider the merits of the appeal. The justices still can vote to hear arguments in the case at a later date.

The lawsuit challenging the administration's power to take such action was filed in January 1976 by Sens. Jesse Helms, R+N.C., James McClure, R+Idaho, and Strom Thurmond, R+S.C., Reps. Daniel Flood, D+Pa., Lawrence McDonald, D+Ga., and Gene Snyder, R+Ky., and William R. Drummond, a civilian living in the Canal Zone.

What's the law?

The case of the banished wife

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Lois made two very bad mistakes. The first was in leaving her husband Rufus, and the second was in asking him to take her back.

"Sure, I'll take you back," he told her, "but for a while you're going to have to live out in the bunkhouse with the hired help until I think you've properly repented. Out there, you'll be able to repent in leisure for having run away from me in haste."

Lois, however, had no intention of living in the bunkhouse, and as soon as she heard her husband's conditions for taking her back, she left him again. This time, however, Rusus started an action against her to end their marriage on the grounds of desertion.

"I'm a generous man," confessed Rufus to the judge, "and while I offered to take Lois back once, I'm not going to do it twice. This time she's had it."

"Banishing me to the bunkhouse," responded Lois, "was hardly what you would call taking me back. On the contrary, it was like sending me to Siberia. No wife has to put up with that!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Rufus a divorce on the grounds of Lois' desertion?

This is how the judge ruled: NO. The judge held that when a wife deserts a husband and offers to return, she is entitled to be taken back under terms that are not inconsistent with her self-respect – and having to live out in a bunkhouse with the hired help was not consistent with that self-respect.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader warns against the psychiatrist habit

Dear Ann: A reader who had spent several years going to a "shrink" wrote to warn others against becoming hooked on a very expensive habit. That was ME.

I became so dependent on my psychiatrist that for two years I lived for my weekly appointment -- waiting for her to wave a magic wand and solve my problems. Finally she got tired of saying, "I am NOT your mother," and arranged for me to see a male therapist.

He never said more than two sentences during a session. I soon found myself loosening up and doing a lot of verbalizing. Finally I talked myself into some confidence.

Now, 12 years later, I still have the same problems, an immature husband, and a self-centered, demanding mother, but I've learned that the world won't fall to piece if I say, "NO."

I still have periods of depression but I am able to cope and my children are doing much better, too. The second therapist didn't solve my problems but he did do something that was much more important. He put me in touch with the only person in the world who could manage my life. ME. -- Thanks, Dr. L.

Dear Friend: You had two good therapists, dear. The first, because she was wise (and secure) enough to send you to someone else -- and Dr. L., who knew precisely how to deal with you.

Dear Ann: You advised "Blushing But Tongue Tied" to tell the gentleman, "You've forgotten to zip your zipper." I was shocked at your insensitivity. If carried out that advice could be devastating.

No gentleman knowingly walks around with his zipper undone. If a woman called such a thing to my attention, I would be mortified. -- Southern School

Dear S.S.: Sorry, but you're badly outnumbered. I took a survey among several male employees of the Chicago Sun-Times and the Chicago Daily News. The vote was 29 in favor of being told and one against. The one against said, "It all depends . . ." but he didn't say what it depended on.

I received approximately 250 letters from readers who suggested the "well-known" code, "X-Y-Z," which means, "Examine Your Zipper." I had never heard the phrase before. When I was young they used buttons. The zipper hadn't been invented!

Dear Ann: Six months ago I obtained a separation from my husband with the understanding that I would go back to him if he quit gambling.

He's still at it. Does a chronic gambler have to hit bottom like an alcoholic before he decides to straighten out his life?

I suggested Gamblers Anonymous but he won't go. I've never had children for this reason. He'd like a family. Should I get pregnant? Would moving to another state help him? Or, should I, at 31, look for a brighter future with someone else? -- Competing With A Horse

Dear Competing: Moving won't help. Having a family won't help. Gamblers Anonymous has rescued thousands and it may be the answer for him.

Tell your horse-lover he can take his choice. Try G.A. (it's in the phone book) or "Bye Bye." If he won't make the effort to help himself, leave him at the post.

Schools out-bored kids?

By Kay Neill,
Area Child & Family Development Specialist

BENTON — School's out, and this means adjustments for everyone. Whether you're a parent, grandparent, neighbor, or friend to some child, you can help the summer go a little more smoothly for all of us.

First of all, find out what's available in your own community. Utilize your library. Most libraries offer special summer programs, such as a story hour. Check out your local churches. Vacation Bible schools welcome visitors and helpers. Many churches coordinate youth activities as well.

If the kids you know are not involved in any structured groups, look into Scouts and 4-H. Of course, these programs need leaders, so you may have opportunity to assist. Scouts and 4-H offer a wide variety of activities. Another alternative is craft classes taught by various shops in the area.

We must not forget summer sports. Ball leagues are available for boys and girls. Then there's tennis, swimming, roller-skating, bowling, horseback riding, etc. This is a great time for everyone to get in shape and enjoy nature.

All kids like to earn extra money, and more important you may wish to teach some responsibility. Think of various jobs and get the neighborhood kids involved. Here are some examples: wash windows, have a garage sale, run errands, wash the car, help in the garden. For teenagers, volunteer work provides great learning experiences.

Summer can be a special time for the family. Plan several outings. Take the family on a picnic to a new and different place. Do some fishing. Get away from the heat and explore a few museums. Visit nearby campuses. As a family, you can have a super time and help everyone enjoy the summer. Let's think of alternatives when the kids say, "I have nothing to do."

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION PROGRAMS ARE OPEN TO ALL.

Afraid You're Going Deaf?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

True, all hearing problems are not alike . . . and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But audiologists report that many can. So, send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept, 9216, Beltone Electronics. 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Ill. 60646.

At Wit's End

Erma talks about people and looks

I sat next to a really neat lady at a luncheon the other week who got to talking about braces on the teeth ... hers.

She said, "How come you never mentioned my braces?"

I stared awkwardly into her fruit cocktail and said, "I don't know ... I guess I didn't want to make you self-conscious."

"I'm not," she said. "You are. It's funny, kids are great about it. They'll come right up and say, 'When do they come off?' or 'Wouldn't you kill for a caramel?' but not adults. They act like they don't see them."

It occurred to me adults are that way about a lot of things.

People make such a flap about face and body lifts. I personally considered Eleanor Roosevelt the most beautiful woman I ever met, but if something bothers you and you can still get the parts, I say go for it!

Or, as a wise friend of mine once said, "To heck with my ironing board, let's put the silicone right up front where everyone can see it."

There is something admirable about a woman (or man) who works on perpetual maintenance. My mother-in-law went through extensive and expensive bridge work at the age of 74. Another woman in her 60s got a face lift and it make such a difference to her. Too often, we're intimidated by age. Everything becomes predictable. Age age 20, the teeth go, at 30, the skin dries up, at 40, the eyes dim, at 50, all the muscles relax and bag around your knees, and at 60 you fall asleep during a tax audit.

I defy you to gather a group of women (or men) and find one who is totally happy with the way she looks. One friend of mine confessed she hated her nose.

"What's wrong with it?" I asked, "it works, doesn't it?"

"That's not the point," she said. "It looks like George C. Scott's."

"So?"

"So, I can't act."

She had the nose altered and I swear I never saw the difference, but she did.

The mind is also not exempt from the self-improvement route. People who are college graduates are the first to admit it's overrated. I knew people who graduated with honors who couldn't operate a pay toilet. But another friend of mine lived for the day when she could enroll in the university and unlock the doors of ignorance.

Whatever stands in the way of your self-confidence ... whether it's an overbite, toeing inward, a 30-pound honker, hips like saddlebags, weak eyes, a guest for Thoreau, wrinkle city, hamster hair or a concave chest, fix it.

I know I never started to live until I lost ten pounds ... five off of each upper arm.

Foyt 'the stooge' wins 4th Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Aging but ageless A.J. Foyt, pocketing the biggest paycheck of his long and already legendary racing career, humbly called himself "just the stooge" who does the driving.

"I'm really a man of few words. There's not much to say," the first four-time winner of the Indianapolis 500 somberly told about 2,000 persons at the annual victory banquet Monday night.

CALL 471-2121
SIKESTON, MO.

Foyt, who finished 28 seconds ahead of runner-up Tom Sneva in Sunday's 61st running of the 500, earned $259,791 — more than $88,000 more than he received for his third victory 10 years ago.

This year's top prize was not a record, but it made the 42-year-old Foyt the first $1 million winner in Indy history.

"We've had good days, and we've had bad days," said the Houston driver, who extended his Indy record to 20 consecutive starts. "It's been a long, long wait. But myself and my crew, we were not going to quit. We never quit. We just kept coming back."

Foyt finished second to Johnny Rutherford in last year's rain-shortened race — one which he felt he could have won had it gone the distance. He complained bitterly at that time that Rutherford, similarly locked into second place a year earlier when rain gave Bobby Unser the victory, had taken unfair advantage of yellow caution lights to improve his position.

But no protest was filed, and Foyt — angry but not discouraged — vowed to keep trying.

Foyt, Rutherford and Mario Andretti all topped 200 miles per hour during practice this year, and Foyt qualified in fourth position — behind pole-winner Sneva and the Unser brothers, Bobby and Al, both two-time Indy winners.

Rutherford, who started in the middle of the pack after an unsuccessful gamble to wrest the No. 1 spot from Sneva, was the first to be forced out. He blew an engine on the 11th lap and finished 33rd, but his paycheck of $19,472 still was a record for last place.

Most of the race was a duel between Foyt and Gordon Johncock, who led 129 of the 200 laps around the 2½-mile track.

Johncock fell behind by 22 seconds before Foyt made a crucial pit stop on the 182nd lap, but the 1973 winner regained the lead the next time around when Foyt went in for his final pit stop. Johncock passed Foyt just as he was leaving the pits, setting up what appeared to be a wheel-to-wheel race to the finish.

But on the next lap, Johncock's engine blew. He slowed up and stopped as Foyt took the lead for good. Sneva, who set official records of 200.535 m.p.h. for one lap and 198.884 for four laps in qualifications, moved up to second. But Foyt's lead at that time was an insurmountable 35 seconds.

It turned out that Sneva, finishing 28.63 seconds behind Foyt, actually lost the race in the pits. He made 10 stops to Foyt's nine, and spent 48 seconds more than Foyt in the pits.

Sneva, who led only three laps during the race, earned $109,947.

Al Unser, whose $271,697 prize for winning the 1970 race is the record, pocketed $66,232 for third place this year. Wally Dallenbach, fourth-place finisher at Indy two years in a row, won $41,192, and Johnny Parsons, son of the 1950 winner, received $33,170 for fifth place.

The rest of the top 10 were Tom Bigelow, $30,466; Lee Kunzman, $29,129; Roger McCluskey, $27,256; Steve Krisiloff, $26,653, and Jerry Sneva, Tom's younger brother, $23,416. Jerry, driving in his first championship car race, got an additional $2,000 as Rookie of the Year.

Johncock, his total boosted by an extra $150 for each of his 129 laps in front of the pack, wound up with $45,417 for 11th.

Rookie Janet Guthrie, the first woman driver in the Indy 500, said it was "still somewhat incredulous" finding herself in the company of the 32 male drivers. She won $16,556 — her largest paycheck ever — for a 29th-place finish.

"I will definitely be back next year," said the 39-year-old Miss Guthrie.

The total purse — topping $1 million for the eighth straight year — was $1,116,807, breaking the former record of $1,037,276 set last year.

Improved defense means first victory for Alexander & Saints

What a difference defense can make!

In his first Bi-State League start Saints lefthander Glen Alexander was loser as his mates made six errors behind him. Sunday those same teammates played errorless ball and Alexander completely baffled the Ste. Genevieve hitters with a four-hitter as Sikeston won 4-1. It was the first win, and the first complete game, of the year for the Sikeston team, as well as the talented hurler.

Ste. Genevieve was getting some pitching help also. Mike Grieshaber and Charles Brown held the Saints hitters to just five hits, but issued five walks and were victims of three errors, all by shortstop Wayne Armbruster. Three of the Saint hits were bunched in a three-run fourth. The defeat dropped the Yanks' record to 1-3.

Alexander fought the heat and a pesky hole beside the pitching rubber to dominate the Ste. Genevieve hitters. He retired the side in order in four of the nine innings and, after Rick Eisenbach's relay throw from the outfield nailed a runner at the plate, Alexander retired nine of the last ten hitters.

Rick Eisenbach started the fourth-inning rally with an infield hit and went to second on a wide throw. Jim Saulter doubled the shortstop in with the Saints' first run. A double by Jeff Jackson socred Saulter and gave Sikeston a 2-1 lead.

Starter Grieshaber left the game with a blister on his pitching hand and Brown was greeted by a sacrifice fly off the bat of Sammy Taylor, scoring Jackson. The Saints led 3-1.

Sikeston scored the final run in the last of the eighth on a walk to Eisenbach, a stolen base and a wild pitch.

Ste. Genevieve scored its only run in the top of the fourth on a walk, wild pitch and a single by Dave Buatte.

Alexander allowed two hits in an inning only once and had a one-hitter going through five innings.

The Saints next home game is Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. against the Cape Capahas. Jeff Jackson is slated to start the non-league game.

Eckersley serves up no-hitter

CLEVELAND (AP) — "I didn't talk to anybody," Dennis Eckersley said of his conduct in the Cleveland Indians' dugout while on his way to pitching a no-hitter. "I told the only guy who tried to talk to me to shut up. I just wanted to concentrate."

The tension broke after the 22-year-old right-hander struck out Gil Flores for his 12th strikeout and sealed a 1-0 victory over Frank Tanana and the California Angels Monday night.

"It's not a matter of how good a pitcher you are," said Eckersley, who now has pitched 16 2-3 consecutive no-hit innings, counting his last start.

"It's a matter of how lucky you are. There are a lot of good pitchers who never get a no-hitter."

The 13,400 fans at Cleveland Stadium cheered Eckersley's every pitch in the ninth. After Eckersley fell behind Bobby Grich 2-1, catcher Ray Fosse went to the mound for a reassuring word. Eckersley then fired two strikes.

Runner-up turns out to be winner in Atlanta Classic

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Veriato didn't win, but he did come away from the Atlanta Classic with something important: the right to continue as a professional golfer.

Veriato, 31, had won only $454 on the tour this year and had to have $7,000 by season's end to retain his card as an approved tour player.

In Sunday's final round of the classic, he came in one stroke behind Hale Irwin to finish in second place and take home $22,800.

"Up until now, everything in my life has been a failure," said Veriato. "I've been awfully discouraged at times. I've thought about quitting trying to play golf for a living.

"But this wasn't a failure," he said. "It gives me the courage to go on."

Some of the game's greatest players took their best shot at Veriato, including Irwin, Jack Nicklaus, PGA champ Dave Stockton, and former U.S. Open king Lou Graham.

But the 135-pounder, facing pressure he'd never before experienced, calmly carded a four-under-par 68 in the final round and finished with a 274.

"My hat's off to him," said Irwin, who won the title in 1975. The tournament was not played last year.

"He came through when he needed to — and he needed to," said Irwin who took home first-prize money of $40,000.

Graham finished the final round with a 68 and a total of 276 for third place. Lanny Wadkins had a par 72 and 277 for fourth and Nicklaus was next with a 68-278.

"I was just trying to win $7,000," said Veriato. "I'm very happy. That's the best I've ever played."

Blues' Gassoff killed in motorcycle crash

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Funeral arrangements for St. Louis Blues hockey defenseman Bob Gassoff were pending Monday. Gassoff, 24, was killed Sunday night in a motorcycle accident about 30 miles west of St. Louis.

Gassoff and other Blues players living in the St. Louis area were attending a barbeque at the farm of Blues teammate Garry Unger, just before the accident.

Defenseman Bruce Affleck and Gassoff were riding trail bikes on Franklin County route M, when the accident occurred, defenseman Bob Plager said.

Gassoff was killed when he apparently crossed the center line and ran head-on into a car driven by Douglas Kelkamp, 19, of rural Villa Ridge, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

The 5-foot-10, 195-pound native of Quesnel, B.C., had bought a home in suburban Richmond Heights. Gassoff's wife, Diane, is expecting her first child.

Gassoff was drafted in 1973 in the third round and played part of his first two seasons with the Blues. The last two were with the Blues.

Last season he tallied six goals and 18 assists. In 245 career National Hockey League games, he had 11 goals and 47 assists. He accumulated 866 penalty minutes during his career.

Dark likes what he sees in Padres

"We've got a lot of young players, a lot of good ones. I've got to find out who can do what," Alvin Dark said.

The new manager of the San Diego Padres took a look at just about everyone and found out that Mike Ivie can hit the ball.

The Padres set a National League record by using 41 players in their doubleheader sweep of the San Francisco Giants 12-8 and 9-8 Monday and the teams set a major league record by using 74 players in the twinbill.

"Well, I got a look at all of them," said Dark, who took over his new job a few hours before the Memorial Day doubleheader and made one key change — moving Ivie from the No. 5 spot to third in the batting order.

Ivie responded with seven hits for the day, including a record-tying five doubles.

"It's the kind of day you dream about," Ivie said.

In other NL games Monday, Montreal swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets 5-1 and 3-2, St. Louis crushed the Chicago Cubs 14-0, Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh 6-4, Cincinnati downed Atlanta 7-3 and Houston stopped Los Angeles 5-3.

"I always thought he (Ivie) would be a good No. 3 hitter because he makes good contact," Dark said. "He's not too fast, but when he hits the ball like that, he doesn't have to be."

Ivie tied a major league mark when he doubled twice in a seven-run seventh-inning burst that carried the Padres to victory in the opener. His five doubles in the twinbill tied a NL record shared by three other players.

George Hendrick homered in each game for San Diego, which extended its winning streak to four games.

Cardinals 14, Cubs 0

Lou Brock had four hits, driving in four runs, Jerry Mumphrey chased home three runs and Ken Reitz smacked a two-run homer, powering St. Louis past Chicago.

The Cards battered Chicago pitching for 21 hits as left-hander Pete Falcone, 2-5, pitched a six-hitter. St. Louis scored three runs in the fourth, chasing loser Mike Krukow, 4-3, then erupted for nine runs in the sixth, snapping the Cubs' winning streak at five games.

Astros 5, Dodgers 3

Joaquin Andujar, with last-inning help from Ken Forsch, pitched a five-hitter and Houston erupted for four runs in the second inning in handing Los Angeles its third straight defeat — the longest Dodgers losing string of the season.

Houston scored four runs in the second inning on singles by Enos Cabell, Art Howe and Cesar Cedeno and Dodgers shortstop Ted Martinez' error.

Phillies 6, Pirates 4

Tim McCarver slammed a three-run double in the first inning and Ted Sizemore cracked a fifth-inning homer as Philadelphia handed Pittsburgh its fourth straight defeat. Steve Carlton, 7-2, went the route as the Phillies gained their fourth straight triumph.

Reds 7, Braves 3

A two-run triple by Ken Griffey sparked a four-run eighth-inning rally, giving Cincinnati its victory over Atlanta. Pete Rose singled home Cesar Geronimo, snapping a 3-3 tie, Griffey scored pinch-runner Ed Armsbrister and Rose with his triple and Joe Morgan singled home Griffey.

Expos 5-3, Mets 1-2

Tony Perez slammed a two-run homer in the first game and Andre Dawson connected with one on in the nightcap as Montreal swept a doubleheader from New York.

Steve Rogers fired a four-hitter in the first game and Perez socked his sixth home run of the year. In the nightcap, Dawson's second home run of the season gave Stan Bahnsen, making his first appearance for the Expos since being acquired from Oakland, the victory.

Blazing Blazers roar to 129-107 romp over Sixers

PORTLAND (AP) — Suddenly, the Philadelphia 76ers have something to think about.

The Portland Trail Blazers put some thoughts in their heads Sunday, unleashing a torrid fast break for a 129-107 victory and cutting their deficit in the National Basketball Association championship finals to 2-1.

The Blazers can even the best-of-seven playoff series with a victory tonight (CBS, 9 p.m. EDT) on their home floor, where they have won their last 16 in a row and are 44-5 for the year.

It was the way the Blazers won Sunday's game that has got the Sixers thinking. After two lackadaisical performances, they came roaring out of the starting gate and ripped off a 20-4 burst in the first quarter to grab an 18-point lead, then buried the Sixers beneath a 42-point fourth quarter.

"We can't come out Tuesday and dig ourselves another hole like that," said Philadelphia's George McGinnis. "Portland is a good club, and now that the series is 2-1 they have something to fight for."

The 107 points which were enough to win the first two games for Philadelphia were far too few for Game Three.

"Portland played a very aggressive game, especially on defense," said Sixers Coach Gene Shue. "We had too many defensive and rebounding breakdowns. They got control early and we played catch-up all day."

"We want to win Tuesday," said superstar Julius Erving, who led the Sixers with 28 points.

New-look lineup brings best in Cards' attack

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Manager Vern Rapp maintained he experienced "good vibes" while making out his National League club's lineup.

Small wonder. The batting order Rapp assembled came up with 21 hits, the Cardinals' biggest total of the year, and manufactured a 14-0 romp over the Chicago Cubs Monday.

Lou Brock led the way with four hits, driving in as many runs, and Ken Reitz smacked his third homer in four games as St. Louis interrupted a Cubs winning streak at five games.

But afterward, while discussing the key, Rapp pointed to Bake McBride's three hits, three runs, stolen base and two RBI in a leadoff role as vital.

"I like Mac leading off," said Rapp, who has spotted the often-injured McBride in center field while making use of a strong supporting cast in the early part of the season.

"He puts the ball in play and he's got good speed," explained Rapp. "It's nothing against anybody else who's been leading off, but he shows me something."

What McBride demonstrated to his manager went double for Chicago, which was the victim of his irrepressible talents throughout.

The lithe outfielder's single and stolen base, combined with two grounders, snapped a scoreless deadlock in the third inning.

An inning later, McBride lofted a sacrifice fly to produce a 2-0 lead and in the sixth, as the Cards erupted for nine runs, he chipped in two singles and scored twice more.

"I kind of like the lineup we had today, too," said McBride, who is on a .429 hitting rampage in his last 10 games. "Any lineup that's got me in it I like."

In addition to the lusty hitting of Brock, Reitz and McBride, the St. Louis attack included three hits by Jerry Mumphrey which helped boost the club's team batting mark to .291.

Splittorff on a streak; wins again for Royals

TORONTO (AP) — Paul Splittorff of the Kansas City Royals, by his own admission, is a streak pitcher.

"My career has been up and down like a roller coaster," the 30-year-old left-hander said Monday night after allowing just five hits in the Royals' 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. "I've had ups and downs every year, but they seem to balance out in my favor."

Splittorff is on a hot streak now.

In his last three starts—all victories—he has pitched 23 2-3 innings and allowed just two earned runs for a 0.76 earned-run average. The streak has helped square his record at 4-4 and lower his season ERA from 4.72 to 3.58.

One of his bad streaks came in 1974 when the Royals lost 27 of their last 31 games and Splittorff lost seven consecutive decisions.

Last season, Splittorff overcame a 3-6 start and won eight games in a row, a Royals record. Splittorff also holds team records for victories, innings pitched, starts and shutouts and became the first Kansas City pitcher to win 20 games when he had a 20-11 record in 1973.

Splittorff said he began to tire in the seventh inning Monday. Reliever Larry Gura pitched to one batter in the eighth and Mark Littell completed the game, earning his sixth save of the season.

"I'm basically a warm weather pitcher," Splittorff said. "In the seventh inning, I had trouble getting loose because of the cold, and I began to tire."

Ime Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

The incident at St. Louis this past Thursday involving umpire Paul Pryor and Phillie second baseman Ted Sizemore reminds us again of the integrity that the men in blue maintain while doing their jobs.

The incident I'm talking about, of course, was Pryor's ruling that Sizemore did not have possession of the baseball after he had speared Garry Templeton's line drive, and the winning run scored for the Cardinals because of that decision. Having been present at the game and having viewed the play first hand, I am in a position to offer my humble opinion on the controversy. Not on the accuracy of Pryor's judgement, but on the guts it took for him to make the call he did.

For those who haven't yet heard or read the events that transpired in the tenth inning Thursday, here is what happened:

With the bases loaded and two out, Templeton hit a line drive that appeared headed for center field for the game-winning bse-hit. Sizemore went to his right, and with his body fully extended and his arm outstretched, grabbed the baseball in mid-air, much to the disappointment of the crowd. But as Sizemore hit the ground and rolled over twice on the dirt, the ball squirted out of his glove. Pryor gave the safe sign, and Tony Scott trotted home with the winning run for the Redbirds. The final score was 4-3.

In all honesty, I thought Sizemore made a legitimate catch, and coming from a true-blue (or red) Cardinal fan, that's saying a lot. Most of the spectators sitting around me thought so too. But, of course, we weren't as close to the play as was Paul Pryor.

But my hat goes off to the umpire, not because he called the play in favor of the Redbirds, but because he called it the way he saw it.

It would have been easy enough for Pryor to rule that it was a legal catch. The Cardinals might have put up a token argument, just to make it look good in front of the home folks, but not much. And there would have been no violent protest from the spectators. As we mentioned earlier, most of them were convinced that Sizemore had made a spectacular play for the second game in a row and that the Cardinals and Phils were headed into the eleventh. That decision would have been the easiest way out.

But, being the professional that he is, Pryor refused to compromise by taking "the easy way out". His judgment told him that Sizemore did not have full possession of the baseball, and it was a matter of integrity for him to call the play that way. And I'd bet that if the game were played in Philadelphia, in front of the Phillies' home town fans, Pryor would call the play the same way.

Jack Buck was justified in choosing Paul Pryor for his "Star of the Game" interview.

Former SHS gridder and thinclad Curtis Bean will be competing in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships beginning next Thursday, June 2, and continuing through June 4.

Bean earned the trip to Champaign, Illinois for the prestigious NCAA event by meeting qualifying standard in his specialty, the long jump. The Standard hopes to provide reports on the Ohio University athlete's progress in the meet.

Congratulations, Curits!

We hope all our readers enjoyed this year's Golf Section, which appeared as a supplement to Thursday's Daily Standard.

Although this year's was not as large in volume as it has been in years past, we'd like to think that it was superior in quality.

I'd like to personally thank Dale Forbis and new staffer Mike Marsh for their work toward the project. They received no by-lines, but that doesn't mean that their contributions weren't significant.

Thanks guys.

New bat, new swing help Parrish belt 3 homers

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Larry Parrish went to a heavier bat to smash three home runs, but timely tips may have helped more.

The Montreal third baseman, after clubbing a home run, already had three hits and an admitted "tendency to overswing" Sunday.

"Mickey Vernon Expos coach came up to me and said, 'Don't swing too hard. Just go up there and try to make good contact,' " recalled Parrish.

"That's how you get most of your home runs," Parrish added after following with solo blasts in the seventh inning of a 5-for-5 day that helped Montreal trounce the St. Louis Cardinals 14-4. "It was good advice."

Parrish, who was hitting .237 at the day's start, drove in five of the Expos runs in a 14-hit Montreal assault off the Cards' Bob Forsch, 7-2, and three pitching successors.

A two-run Parrish single finished Forsch as the Expos sent 12 batters to the plate in an eight-run first inning, and Parrish singled and scored again two innings later.

St. Louis rookie John Urrea was then the victim of Prrish's home runs in the fifth and seventh inning and Butch Metzger served up No. 3 in the final inning as Montreal arrested a four-game skid.

"I'd been overdue," said the 6-foot-3 Parrish, who prior to the day had been rested for five games before returning to the slump-ridden Expos lineup Saturday night.

"A lot if times, especially in Jarry Park when we played there, I'd hit the ball hard but the wind held it up and it wouldn't go out. You'd wind up talking to yourself and wondering what to do next.

"It's hard to say when I ever had three in one day," mused Parrish. "I never had a day like this. I'd had two home runs but never three. The only time I ever hit three home runs was in slow pitch softball."

The noisy Montreal beginning, the National League club's biggest inning of the season, enabled left-hander Dan Warthen, 2-2, to pitch the distance on a yield of eight hits.

"He was on the verge of coming out. He had control problems," said Manager Dick Williams. "In the bottom of the fifth, he had one more pitch."

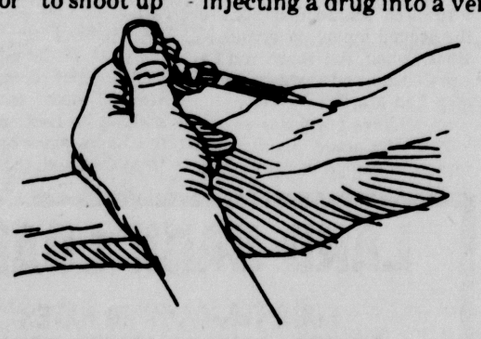
We think the average parent should know as much about drugs as the average pusher.

Sometime soon you'll want to talk with your teenagers about drugs. The sooner the better. We hope this page gives you something to start talking about. Because we want you to get to your kids before somebody else does.

THE OPIATES
When most people refer to "narcotics" this group of drugs is what they are talking about. Opiates are used medically as pain killers. On the street they cause pain for the user and society in general.

Mainline
or "to shoot up" - injecting a drug into a vein.

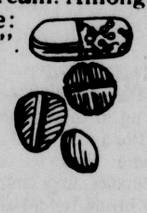


"A Hit"
street slang for an injection of drugs.

A Bag
packet of drugs, or a single dose of an opiate. Amount of the drug in the bag is denoted by price, a nickel bag ($5), a dime bag ($10).

THE STIMULANTS
These drugs stimulate the system, or make a person more lively. While they are not physically addictive like the opiates, they produce a psychological dependence or craving.

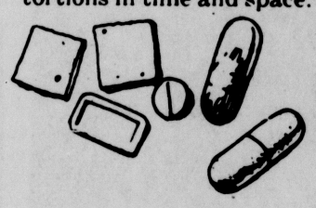
Amphetamines
these stimulants are taken in tablet or capsule form, or injected into the blood stream. Among the widely used amphetamines are:
Dexedrine - or "dex" or "dexies".
Benzedrine - or "bennies".
Methedrine - or "speed" or "crystal meth".
Biphetamine - or "footballs".



PSYCHEDELICS
The medical classification of all mind altering substances. "Psychedelics" change a person's perception of his surroundings.

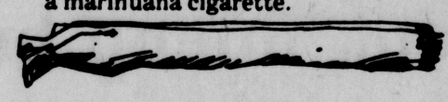
Hallucinogens
Those psychedelics which cause hallucinations.

LSD
probably the most powerful psychedelic. Reactions to LSD are extremely unpredictable. Distortions in time and space. Brighter colors. Vivid sounds. Feelings of strangeness. A sense of beauty in common objects. Sometimes fear and panic. Sometimes even psychosis.



Marihuana
the crushed and chopped leaves and flowers from the hemp plant. Sometimes smoked in cigarette form. Sometimes smoked in pipes. Reactions can be: a giddy feeling like drunkenness; changes in perception and mood; feelings of well-being or fear; and possibly hallucinations. Slang terms for marihuana are "grass" or "pot".

Joint
a marihuana cigarette.



Roach
the butt end of a joint.

Barbiturates
these drugs are in the group called sedatives - medicines to make you sleepy. Barbiturates are taken in capsule or tablet form. They cause physical dependence (addiction), and after repeated use, physical withdrawal does occur when these drugs are discontinued. Among the common commercial names for barbituates are:
Seconal or "red devils"
Nembutal or "yellow jackets"
Amutal or "blue heavens" or "blue-devils"
Luminal or "purple hearts"
Tuinal or "rainbows" or "double trouble"

"The solution of the drug problem in Sikeston cannot be accomplished by school officials, the police department, or any other single group within our community. It will demand the cooperation, interest/concern of all...parents, young people, city officials, school personnel..EVERYONE..!! I believe the TIP program is a step in the right direction."

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, May 31, the 151st day of 1977. There are 214 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1910, the Union of South Africa was founded.

On this date:

In 1740, Frederick William I of Prussia died and was succeeded by Frederick II, who became known as Frederick the Great.

In 1793, the Reign of Terror began in the French Revolution.

In 1889, more than 2,000 lives were lost in a flood at Johnstown, Pa.

In 1916, British and German fleets fought in the Battle of Jutland off Denmark. It was the only major engagement between the two fleets in World War I.

In 1943, in World War II, the French naval squadron at Alexandria, Egypt joined the Allies.

In 1962 former Nazi Adolf Eichmann was executed in Israel after his capture in Argentina and trial on charges of war crimes.

Ten years ago: Western diplomats in Nigeria began arrangements to evacuate their nationals because of the threat of warfare.

Five years ago: President Richard M. Nixon met with Communist officials in Warsaw, Poland.

One year ago: The estranged wife of former Attorney General John Mitchell, Martha Mitchell, died of cancer at the age of 57.

Today's birthdays: Prince Rainier of Monaco is 54. Pro-football quarterback Joe Namath is 34.

Thought for today: The world is like a grand staircase. Some are going up, and some are going down. — an Italian saying.

Time near to apply dinoseb on corn

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

BENTON — Last year several thousand acres of corn in Southeast Missouri were treated with Dinoseb, commonly referred to as dinitro, as a biostimulant.

Dinitro was the primary chemical used, but Spark was also used on several acres. Most of the chemicals was applied by air. Some was applied by high clearance ground equipment.

We worked with four different farmers to obtain yields from treated and untreated areas in a field. All fields were treated by air application. Yields were increased, four, six, six, and 12 bushels per acre on the four fields. Some farmers treated too early or too late to obtain a response, and in some cases, rain occurred too soon after application for chemical to work. Several farmers told me they felt the treatment increased their yield and will use it again this year.

Both chemicals will be available in 1977 for farmer use. Equal yield increases should be obtained from the use of either material when applied at the recommended rate and time.

As most farmers know, dinitro is a post-emergence weed killer used in soybeans and some other crops. It is a herbicide that kills on contact when applied at the recommended rate. However, research has shown that a very, very small amount applied to corn at a specific time will generally increase yield five to 10 per cent.

How does the material increase yield? Dr. A. J. Ohlrogge of Purdue University Agronomy Department says it speeds up pollination and silking. This means the grain filling period is lengthened. You also get bigger ears, fuller ears, and fewer barren stalks.

Two dinitro chemicals are labeled for use in Missouri. One is Premerge, made by Dow Chemical Company, and the other is Spark, marketed by Helena chemical Company.

Time of Application

Time of application is critical so apply material at the following growth period. Application should be made between the time the 7th and 12th leaves unroll. By the time the 12th leaf unrolls, it is almost too late. At this time the unemerged tassel will be one-half to seven inches in length. This period is usually between four and 2 weeks prior to tassel emergence, respectively, and corn is three to five feet tall. How can you tell how long the unemerged tassel is? The best way is to split a few stalks and measure the developing tassel. It is too late to treat after corn has tasseled.

I checked a field of the earliest planted corn in the county May 20. Corn was approximately four feet tall, seven leaf stage and the unemerged tassels were three inches long. It is time for this field to be treated soon as weather permits. Our corn got off to a good start and is developing on schedule. The recent rains will push it a little faster. If you plan to treat your cornwith dinitro this year, better start checking the stage of growth and prepare for application.

Rate of Application - Premerge

One pint of premerge dinitro weed killer will treat the foliage of 30 to 50 acres of corn. Application can be made by high- clearance ground sprayer or with an airplane. For ground application, mix four ounces of Premerge in 250 gallons of water or 1.6 ounces per 100 gallons and apply at the rate of 20 to 30 gallons per acre. For aerial application, mix one pint (16 fluid ounces) of Premerge in 150 gallons of water and spray at a delivery rate of 3 to 5 gallons per acre and cover 50 to 30 acres. About 40 acres per pint is an optimum application. an approved surfactant should be used at the rate of one-half pint per 100 gallons of spray solution. If more than ½ pint of surfactant per 100 gallons is used, foliage will be burned and may have an adverse effect on yield.

Rate of Application -Spark

One pint of Spark will cover one acre of corn. It comes premixed in five gallon containers with surfactant and anti-foaming agent already added. Five gallons will cover 40 acres at the rate of one pint per acre. Mix Spark with water and apply at the rate of 20 to 30 gallons per acre with ground equipment or three to five gallons per acre by airplane.

Cost will depend on material used, but should vary from $2.10 to $2.50 per acre. This includes cost of material and aerial application.

Be careful, especially when using Premerge. Forone thing, the low application rate is critical, especially with premerge, which has to be greatly diluted. If too much is applied, you will get foliage burn. This may result in a yield decrease instead of an increase.

You may not want to try this treatment on every acre of corn, but it has shown high probabilities of increasing grain yields five to ten per cent. Remember also, that this treatment is in addition to all other good recommended cultural practices.

Note: This treatment should be used on field corn used for grain only. Treated corn should not be grazed or fed as silage. Contact your local University of Missouri Extension Center if you have questions.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower wants identity of own

NEW YORK (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower is trying to establish her own identity after years of being known only as the daughter of Richard M. Nixon.

"I want to be accepted as a writer," she said in an interview Monday. "I want to feel that I'm a contributing member of society and not just one of the people who has lived in the White House."

At 28, former President Nixon's younger daughter has just written her first book, "Special People," which is to be published June 6.

The book contains six profiles of famous people she has known, including Prince Charles, heir to the British throne; the late Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung and author Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Mrs. Eisenhower is quick to admit that the profiles, which deal with marriages, tragedies and problems in the limelight, reveal almost as much about her as they do about the people she interviewed.

Of Mrs. Lindbergh, an author and widow of Charles A. Lindbergh, Mrs. Eisenhower writes: "We talked about marriage and the seemingly unavoidable mistake of expecting more of the one you love than others, expecting men to meet your needs effortlessly, to share your goals."

Asked if her marriage to David Eisenhower was strained by the public life they led when her father was president, Mrs. Eisenhower said: "Yes, I think it has undergone great changes. I think that the last White House years were a greater strain on us than we realized, and in the decompression period, there were many adjustments to make.

"Not only was it gearing down from being on the phone all day and all of the demands on our time, like mail and public appearances, but it was getting to know each other again."

David graduated from law school last year, and is working on a book about his grandfather, the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He has not yet taken the bar examination, his wife said.

The Eisenhowers recently moved from New York to a three bedroom beach house overlooking the Pacific in Capistrano Beach, Calif., about a 15-minute drive from her parents' retreat in San Clemente.

Mrs. Eisenhower said she is afraid her mother will not recover completely from the stroke she suffered last July. "They say that if you're not recovered within a year, you never have a complete recovery, and it's almost a year now," she said. "Mother has a little difficulty walking and can't use her left hand completely, but her spirit is good."

In a choked voice, she said her mother is in pain most of the time because since her stroke she has suffered from arthritis.

"I ask her how she feels, and she'll say, 'Oh, I'm so sick of myself. I'm not going to complain,'" Mrs. Eisenhower said.

Asked for her reaction to her father's interviews with television personality David Frost, Mrs. Eisenhower set her jaw stubbornly, the way she had when she vehemently defended Nixon during the days before he became the only man in history to resign the presidency.

"I don't want to comment on it," she said. "He expressed himself much better than I could. He has to speak for himself. I'm proud of my father."

A gun store is guarded by an African lion, who stalks the building at night.

resulted in minor injuries to a Poplar Bluff resident, John Michael Mansker, 18, who was taken to Veterans Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The patrol said the accident occurred when the driver of the southbound car attempted to light a cigarette. Mansker took his eyes off the road, drove off the east side of the road and struck a utility pole, cutting it off about 20 feet above ground.

Ronnie Lee Bellomy, 19, of Paragould, Ark., driver of a westbound pickup truck, sustained minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident at 9:15 p.m. Monday on Highway 164, two miles west of Arbyrd.

He was taken to Methodist Hospital in Paragould.

The accident occurred during a heavy rain storm and Bellomy was apparently blinded by the rain. His truck ran off the road into a ditch.

Cape agent censured

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A long-time State Liquor Control Department agent here has been reprimanded and ordered removed from liquor violation investigations because he compromised an inquiry into complaints concerning a Cape Girardeau liquor store.

The action was taken against C. Baldwin Young, an agent for 30 years, because he violated the confidence of a Southeast Missourian reporter who brought the alleged violations to his attention.

Young was suspended without pay from the department for one week while a special department agent and a Missouri Highway Patrol internal bureau investigator conducted an investigation into the incident.

A report of their investigation resulted in the action taken by Director of Public Safety W. Kenneth Carnes and State Liquor Control Supervisor Al Letts, who jointly ordered the internal investigation after the district liquor control supervisor here submitted a report questioning Young's actions.

The state investigation showed that Young went directly to the liquor store owner and asked him about certain complaints which the reporter informed the agent of, although the reporter asked that the complaints be kept in strict confidence so that an investigation could be conducted.

On three occasions, Young discussed the specific complaints with the operator of the store, the report showed, thereby destroying any possibility of a successful investigation.

Among the complaints received by The Missourian in an anonymous letter was that the store was selling liquor after closing hours and on Sunday.

A decision was made to contact the Liquor Control Department district supervisor here to discuss the complaints and ask for the department's cooperation in a joint investigation into the store's operation.

The district supervisor, James Moore, was contacted by the reporter and an appointment was made to meet with him in his office at 11 a.m. Feb. 25.

When the reporter arrived. Young also was at the office and he was asked by the reporter to participate in the meeting with Moore because the store is located in the area handled by Young.

Prior to discussing the complaints with Moore and Young, the reporter asked that the discussion be held in strict confidence. Moore nodded in agreement. Young gave no indication of acknowledging the request.

Both Moore and Young said they would cooperate in a joint investigation by the newspaper and the department. However, no definite arrangements were made at the Feb. 25 meeting.

The report prepared by Moore for former Liquor Control Department Supervisor Robert Stewart showed that on the same afternoon of the meeting, Young went to the operator of the store and asked him about the complaints made to The Missourian.

Moore's report said Young informed him that he had gone to the store owner to discuss some of the complaints. The district supervisor's report said he advised Young that he "should never have said anything" because of the confidential nature of the information and "we could have conducted an investigation to our own satisfaction."

The afternoon of March 14, the reporter again visited the department office at 101 North Kingshighway to ask about any new developments in the case.

Shortly after the reporter arrived, Young received a telephone call from the operator of the store.

Moore's report said that Young informed him after the reporter left that the telephone call was from the store owner and that he wanted to meet with Young to discuss certain legalities involving the sale of liquor.

The topic Young told Moore the store operator wanted to discuss was one of the specific complaints which was contained in the letter to The Missourian.

On the night of the second meeting, Moore informed the reporter of Young's actions and it was decided not to further pursue the investigation at that time because of the apparent compromise.

Moore's report said that on April 15, he and two other agents were observing the store because of a complaint he had received in the meantime concerning sale of liquor to minors.

The report said that the operator of the store and another man came outside, saw them and started walking toward the car from which they were conducting the surveillance.

According to the report, the three agents drove away and the operator of the store and his companion got into a car and began following them. The report said the liquor agents did not see the car again after they drove away.

Moore's report said on April 18 the operator of the store again contacted Young to ask whether there had been any complaints against him. Moore's report said Young informed the store owner he had no one watching the store and had not personally received any complaints.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

By RAYMOND CREWS

Sentimentalist or not, if you ever saw or see the traditional service at the shrine of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery on Memorial Day, you would have or see moist eyes, quivering lips, a tightening of the throat in reverent silence.

The story behind the story of the Unknown Soldier is drama without equal on any stage. It starts first with New York Congressman Hamilton Fish introducing a House Joint Resolution to have an unidentified, killed in action American Soldier returned from France for reinterment at Arlington. The drama continues with Admiral Dewwy's famous Flagship "Olympia" commissioned to return the body to America with Marine Corp escort. In story book manner, the drama relates the care with which anonymity was made certain ... how the selection was made ... how an ordinary American, a Chicago orphan, as a sergeant in France was chosen and ordered to walk into a room and place a bouquet of roses on one of four unidentified caskets .. how Sergeant Younker placed the bouquet and thus made a selection which he later described as God's choice.

The tomb of the Unknown Soldier is more than a symbol of sentiment. It is an American voice which gives thanks to the glory of God that we as Americans, can and do respect the honor and memory of our departed ones, soldiers and civilians alike...

3 thefts occur in Dexter

DEXTER— Three thefts occurred over the weekend, but only change was taken in each incident, police said today.

Reeves Nursing Home, 228 E. Market St., was broken into sometime Sunday and about $15 worth of change taken from the office.

Method of entry was by removing a window from the building.

The window was found Monday on another lot with the glass broken.

Two thefts from houses took place Sunday. As the families were sitting in the front yards, thieves entered the houses through unlocked back doors, police said.

The home of Vernon Gard, 102 Taylor St., was entered Sunday and a purse taken.

A small amount of money was taken from the purse, which was recovered in Wilson's Trailer Court.

The home of Birdie Hearn, 104 W. McCollum St., was entered Sunday and a purse taken.

A small amount of money was taken from the purse, which was recovered at the intersection of Highways 114 and 25.

The purse was not discovered missing until it was recovered, police said.

The houses were located about four to six blocks apart.

Police are still investigating all three thefts.

June Calendar Girl

Nance Larue Campbell, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Campbell, 204 Wakefield, is the June Calendar Girl. Larue is a 1977 graduate of Sikeston High School and was a finalist in last year's Miss Sikeston contest. She is 5 feet 3 inches tall, with brown eyes and blonde hair. She enjoys swimming, water skiing and fishing. She plans to attend The University of Mississippi this fall and wants to major in marketing. (Daily Standard photo)

Sikeston's future power plans await Supreme Court ruling

Sikeston's proposed 235 megawatt power plant is now in the hands of the Missouri Supreme Court, following a hearing Friday morning in Jefferson City on a lawsuit challenging the legality of the city's plans to sell the plant's excess power.

If the court should rule that Sikeston cannot sell the power to 11 other cities, the future of the large power plant will be placed in jeapordy.

The suit was brought by Charles Mitchell of Sikeston and Don C. Diven of Trenton. A group of private utility companies including Missouri Utilities and Ark-Mo Power Co., were asked by the court to submit briefs on the case and joined Mitchell andDiven in the suit.

The REA Electric Cooperatives and the Public Counsel for the Missouri Public Service Commission submitted briefs supporting Sikeston's position.

Prior to the hearing, city officials were expressing confidence over the outcome.

Apparently nothing happened during the hour-long hearing to change their minds.

"I thought it went just as anticipated," said former city attorney Manuel Drumm, who represented the city. "There were no unforeseen problems.

Drumm said he hoped to hear the court's decision within six to eight weeks.

"In other bond cases where we've had public interest involved they have given opinions in six to eight weeks," he said.

The suit arose from Sikeston's plans to sell the excess power from the steam plant to 11 other Missouri cities. The income from the sale will repay the bonds on the large plant.

The suit challenged the legality of the sales contracts on grounds that the city was building the plant just to sell power.

The city's position was that it is building the power plant to provide power to the city until the year 2,000 and that it will have excess power to sell until then.

The contracts were also being challenged on whether or not the cities have the authority to obligate themselves to buy power over long periods of time.

A court decision on the matter is required before the city can sell the bonds needed to pay for the plant.

The city plans to start work on the 235 megawatt steam plant this fall.

Former SeMo man drowns

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Kevin Menz, 24, formerly of the Illmo-Scott City area, drowned Friday in Green's Bayou at Houston, Tex.

Born May 17, 1953 at Cape Girardeau, he had been working for the National Marine Service at Houston for one-year.

Survivors include: His father, James Menz of Bostwick, Fla.; his mother, Mrs. Stella Menz of Cape Girardeau; two brothers, Michael and Keith Menz of Cape Girardeau; and one sister, Mrs. Georgia Heise of Cape Girardeau.

Services were conducted at 1:30 p.m. Monday in Ford and Sons Funeral Home with the Rev. Robert Schumacher pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church at Illmo, officiating.

Burial followed in Lorimier Cemetery.

Thieves busy here

Several thefts were reported to the Public Safety Department over the Memorial Day weekend.

Burglars took a large number of items from the Quality Stamp store, in the Mid-towner Village sometime between midnight Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

Entry to the building was obtained by breaking out a plate glass window in the front of the building. The monetary value of the goods was not available.

In other thefts: Billy J. Gadberry, 205 Adams St., reported the theft of a citizens band radio antenna worth $33 between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday from the parking lot of Apostolic Pentecostal Church on William St.

Larry Tucker, 209 Broadway St., reported the theft of a battery from his car between 10 p.m. Sunday and 6:10 a.m. Monday while the car was parked in the Harts Bakery parking lot. The battery was valued at $30.

In two late reports, public safety officers said three golf carts taken Wednesday night or Thursday morning from the Sikeston Country Club were recovered near the club. The carts were badly damaged.

A CB radio worth $100 was taken Friday morning from a car parked in the Kingsway Mall parking lot. The radio belonged to Robert Eugene Eads of Marston.

Fire destroys vacant home

Public safety officers from the fire division were called six times Monday night and early today, according to the Public Safety Department.

At 8:38 p.m. Monday an electrical wire fell across the road at 1509 Washington St., and firemen were called to standby the scene.

At 8:28 p.m. Monday firemen extinguished a buring trash barrel at 225 Petty St.

At 9:24 p.m. firemen were called to extinguish lightning - caused transformer fire at 614 Delmar St., and a fire in a television set at the P. H. Hunott home, 516 William St. The fire was caused by a short-circuit in the television.

At 9:59 p.m. firemen extinguished a burning couch, rug and clothing at the Bobby Williamson home. Fire damage was confined to the couch with smoke damage to the house. The cause of the fire was not listed. Officers said there were four fires burning in the house when they arrived.

At 4:22 a.m. today the fire division assisted the Miner Fire Department in fighting a house fire at 217 Harris St.

The fire destroyed the vacant home, owned by O'Neal-Nunnelee Real Estate. Cause of the fire was not listed.

Search begins for cause of Kentucky nightclub fire

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — The hunt for bodies has given way to a search for clues to the fire that in moments consumed the Beverly Hills Supper Club, killing at least 160 diners and nightclub patrons.

Late Monday, a giant crane began ripping down the brick and wood facade, finishing what the fire started.

It revealed the original colonial face of what had been one of the Midwest's slickest nightspots, perched on a 17-acre bluff across the Ohio River from Cincinnati. Officials got their first look inside the Zebra Room, just above where the fire is thought to have started in a basement boiler room area.

They saw rubble but no bodies. Red Cross volunteers standing by sighed in collective relief. It had been their job to put charred corpses into body bags before transport to a makeshift morgue in a nearby Fort Thomas, Ky., armory.

Southgate Fire Chief Dick Riesenberg said he is "absolutely certain" the rubble will yield no more victims.

Kentucky Highway Patrol Commissioner Ken Brandenburgh said families and friends had reported 58 persons missing by Monday. Of the 160 bodies found, 118 have been identified.

"I don't know yet how many of the still unidentified dead will be on that missing list, but the fact that there are more people listed as missing than there are unidentified bodies does not necessarily mean there are still some victims left in the club," he said.

"Some of those reported missing may simply not have made contact with their relatives as yet."

Brandenburgh, who is coordinating the investigation, added, "You can't expect us to come up with any possible explanations until at least the end of the week." The cause of a 1970 blaze that destroyed an older club on the site was never determined.

Investigators have tentatively ruled out arson and earlier theories that the fire started in a basement generator or leaking oil tank, but have no explanation as to why the fire spread so quickly.

Some survivors said the flames flashed through air conditioning ducts and broke out through all the walls simultaneously.

"They told us to leave. We got up. We noticed smoke, and then, wham, fire all around," said a survivor from the Cabaret Room, where singer John Davidson was to have performed moments after the fire routed a crowd of at least 1,000 Saturday night.

A charge of overcrowding in the Cabaret Room is being investigated. Most victims died trying to leave that room as smoke billowed in.

There had been reports that exit lights went out just as flames were discovered. Fire officials denied the blaze started in a faulty electric generator.

State fire inspector John Bramlage of Fort Wright, Ky., confirmed early today that the club's owners had complied with his order of six months ago to install auxiliary lights.

Mississippi river claims C'ville man

CARUTHERSVILLE — Draging operations are continuing today in efforts to recover the body of Donnie McCaig, 30, of rural Caruthersville, who apparently drowned at 1:15 p.m. Monday in the Mississippi River, about four miles south of town.

A spokesman at the Pemiscot County sheriff's Department today said McCaig and his family were on an outing at the river when a daughter, name and age unavailable, got into deep water and called for help. McCaig went to aid the girl and was able to get her back into shallow water.

In some manner McCaig reportedly fell or slipped back into deep water. He reportedly was seen once about 50-feet up stream from where he went under the water.

Searching operations started about 2:30 p.m. Monday, but were terminated about dusk. Today's search is being conducted by a Blytheville, Ark. rescue team and members of the Caruthersville rescue team.

Moit jury selection starts today

BENTON — A jury is scheduled to be selected today in Scott County Circuit Court to hear testimony in the murder trial of Manuel Allen Moit, 24, of Bertrand.

Circuit Judge Stanley A. Grimm of the 32nd Judicial Circuit has been designated as special judge.

Moit is charged with the first degree murder of James Edward "Jamie" Helms Jr., 23, of Sikeston, whose body was found Aug. 8, 1976 in a drainage ditch near Diehlstadt.

6 die in area accidents

A Lilbourn youth died Monday from injuries received in an accident Saturday and five out-of-state residents were killed early today near Charleston. The highway patrol reported moderate injuries to four other persons and two minor injuries in four separate accidents on area roads over the Memorial Day weekend.

The death toll on area roads totals 23 for this year, excluding the five fatalities today, compared to 47 during the same period last year.

James Raidt Jr., 16, of Lilbourn died at 5:29 p.m. Monday in Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff where he was taken after the accident at 5:20 a.m. Saturday on Route T, six miles west of Lake Wappapello.

Receiving moderate injuries in the accident were passengers John Raidt, 20, of Lilbourn, Sherry Sorrell, 21, and Terry Woodrow, 24, of Poplar Bluff and Larry Gadis, 18, of Lilbourn. All were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff. Billy Wilson, 19, of Lilbourn, driver of the northbound car, and another passenger, Ricky Brock, 17, of Lilbourn received minor injuries and were taken to Doctor's Hospital.

The patrol reported the Wilson car, traveling at a high rate of speed, attempted to pass another vehicle and ran off the road, traveling 619 feet before striking a tree.

Raidt, a shoe factory worker, was born July 25, 1960 at Lilbourn to James and Betty Bush Raidt, who survive, of Lilbourn.

Other survivors include: One brother, John Raidt of Lilbourn; three sisters, Betty L. Hughes of Portageville and Kathy and Linda Mae Raidt of Lilbourn; and paternal grandmother, Iva Mae Raidt of Lilbourn.

Services were conducted at 2 p.m. today at Ponder Funeral Home in Lilbourn with the Rev. Randy Thomas of Sikeston officiating.

Burial followed in Mounds Park Cemetery near Lilbourn.

Five out-of-state residents, reportedly from Illinois and Tennessee, were killed about 5:45 a.m. today on Interstate 57, one mile east of Charleston. Another passenger was critically injured and taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospita, at Sikeston.

Names and addresses of the dead were withheld, pending notification of relatives, the patrol said.

Apparently the accident occurred when the driver went to sleep and the car struck an overpass pillar.

Obscenity law struck down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let stand a decision by Missouri's highest court striking down that state's system of prosecuting obscenity cases under municipal ordinances.

The court refused to review a ruling by the Missouri Supreme Court that all obscenity cases must receive a jury trial at the first judicial level.

The ruling invalidated a system in which obscenity defendants charged with violating municipal laws first receive a non-jury municipal court trial. If convicted by the presiding judge, the defendant has the right to appeal and receive a brand new trial — by jury — in a county circuit court.

Robert J. Darby was charged in 1973 with violating a Kansas City ordinance by displaying allegedly obscene movies, a "petty offense." Before his conviction by a municipal court judge, Darby argued that he was entitled to a trial by jury.

The judge sentenced Darby to 90 days in jail. On appeal, a Jackson County Circuit Court jury convicted Darby after a new trial and sentenced him to 120 days in jail and a $500 fine.

After a series of appeals, however, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled that Darby should have received a jury trial first and that his equal-protection rights had been violated by having to go through a non-jury trial. It freed Darby.

Appealing that ruling, City Attorney Aaron A. Wilson argued that Missouri law makes possible a trial by jury on the second tier of the state judiciary.

He said that requiring a jury trial leaves city prosecutors with two options: do not prosecute under municipal ordinances on obscenity or provide jury trials in municipal courts "at substantial cost to the taxpayers."

Wilson said the Missouri court's ruling that obscenity cases alone of all petty offense must be tried by a jury "will have far-reaching national consequences in many jurisdictions other than Missouri."

The Missouri Supreme Court based its ruling on decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1973 and 1974 which, it said, required juries to determine what is obscene according to contemporary community standards.

12 SEMO projects listed in bill

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U. S. Reep. BILL D. BURLISON (D-Mo.), who serves on the House Committee on Appropriations, today announced that his Committee this morning reported out the Public Works Appropriations Bill for Fiscal Year 1978.

Numerous Tenth District Corps of Engineers projects are included in the proposal. Burlison noted that the Corps of Engineers is the President's arm in the area of Public Works. The Corps makes recommendations to the President and he, through his Office of Management and Budget, makes a final determination as to the funding to be included in the President's budget, which is submitted to the Congress each January.

If the President does not recommend funds in his budget, the only way they can be obtained is by Congress, acting through its Committee on Appropriations, adding on these funds.

"Upon being named to the Committee on Appropriations a few years ago," Burison said, "I immediately made the critical drainage and flood control problems in my district of utmost priority and during the past few years, I have been fortunate in getting flood control and drainage projects approved and added to the budget. It was encouraging in perusing the President's budget this year to see that funds to continue some of the ongoing programs were budgeted by the President. Again, I was able to add additional projects."

Burlison indicated that the following items were included in the House Committee bill just approved.

FEWER STUDENTS, HIGHER COST

The number of students enrolled in the nation's public elementary and secondary schools has been going down little by little every year since 1971, when enrollment reached a peak of more than 45 million. This year, it is 43,721,000.

Population forecasts indicate that the decline will continue to 1983, down to about 40 million; then a gradual rise will begin.

Interestingly, despite this 2 per cent decline in public school enrollment, total expenditures for public elementary and secondary schools in the same period have soared — from $40.7 billion in 1969-70 to $67.1 billion in 1975-76. This represents an increase of 65 per cent.

Something else has been going up — the state and federal share of the education dollar. Before World War II, local governments provided over two-thirds of all support for public schools, the states furnished less than one-third and federal support was negligible.

By 1975-76, reports the Tax Foundation, the state share had risen to 44 per cent and the federal contribution was 8 per cent, but the share financed by local governments had fallen to 48 per cent. The figures are national averages; there are wide variations from state to state.

In New Hampshire and North Dakota, for example, the state governments provide less than 15 per cent of total school funds, contrasted with Hawaii, which finances 93 per cent, with the federal government supplying the remainder.

Expenditures per pupil are also vastly different from state to state. New York, which spends $2,179 per pupil, is at the top of the scale. Arkansas, which spends $881, is at the bottom. Tennessee, Missouri and Louisiana also spend less than $1,000 per pupil.

No matter how the statistics are sliced, however, Americans, through their state, local and federal taxes, are spending more and more to educate fewer and fewer children. Even the states on the bottom of the scale have registered increases of from 55 to 71 per cent since 1969.

DIPLOMATIC IMPUNITY

Foreign governments owe the District of Columbia $1,070,000. That's the value of some 37,905 unpaid parking tickets issued to diplomats between Jan. 1, 1970 and last March 31.

According to the district's Department of Transportation, the Soviet embassy has accumulated more unpaid parking tickets than any other embassy by far, with 12,270. Distant runners-up are the Israelis,with 4,885.

There's not much chance this $1 million- plus will ever be collected, since diplomatic immunity exempts foreign embassy personnel from the obligations of ordinary mortals. New York City has the same problem with the cars of foreign officials assigned to the United Nations. For cops in both cities, it is usually an exercise in futility to tag an illegally parked diplomatic vehicle.

The surprising thing, though, is that despite diplomatic immunity, the foreign embassies in Washington do pay about 20 per cent of the tickets slapped on their windshields. Compared with the record of repayment of World War I and World War II debts to this country, that's not a bad percentage at all.

KOREAN UNCERTAINTY

It is difficult to see what is to be gained by President Carter's plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea over the next four or five years, except for some possible savings in the defense budget that would quickly be swallowed up elsewhere.

Only the U.S. military presence in Korea, currently at some 38,000 combat-ready men, has kept the peace there for the past 24 years, a peace punctuated by recurring "incidents" along the 38th parallel truce line.

For once we are in agreement with the generals, one of whom was so opposed to the plan that he publicly differed with his Commander-in-Chief. American withdrawal could lead to another war with North Korea, warned Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, chief of staff of U.S. forces in Korea. For his pains, he was recalled home and "reassigned."

Singlaub is no Douglas MacArthur, of course, and South Korea is far stronger militarily than it was in 1950. But it was the mistaken belief of the North Koreans in 1950 that the United states no longer considered South Korea to be within its sphere of concern — a belief encouraged by our own State Department — which helped bring about the invasion and the war that has never really ended.

In the absence of any evidence that the North Koreans have abandoned the dream of completing their frustrated conquest of the South — every indication, in fact, points to the contrary— we could well be inviting history to repeat itself.

OVER THE STORE

Concerned about the stagnation of center cities, the minister of construction and town planning in West Germany has come up with a plan he hopes will bring people back to such areas.

He is proposing legislation that would require builders of office buildings to include in their plans at least some apartments in the same buildings.

We don't advocate legislation like that, but the basic goal has some merit. Memphis has one good example of how that would work — the apartments that tower over a department store on the Mid- America Mall. They are well occupied, while some of the downtown office buildings are having trouble finding business and professional tenants.

Actually, it is an adaptation of the old idea of living over the store. We used to build a lot of buildings like that 50 years ago. Why not again now?

SEAL SLAUGHTER

In a world in which many animals and birds have already been eliminated, through thoughtlessness or cupidity, conservationists at this season are trying to spread the word that one more species, the harp seal, is threatened with extinction. March is the month when the annual seal hunt occurs in eastern Canada. The objects of the hunt by Norweigian and Canadian sealers are the harp seal pups, which are bludgeoned to death and skinned shortly after birth so that their white furred pelts can be used to trim boots and hats and to make toys and trinkets.

Although the gravity of the threat to the harp seal's survival is in dispute, there can be no doubt that the animal's numbers are being greatly depleted. The Canadian government this year set a kill quota of 170,000 seals, but each year the quota is exceeded because of ineffective policing. Despite the minimum importance of the animal hunt to the Canadian economy, the Canadian government declined to act on a 1972 recommendation by a government advisory committee that sealing be phased out by 1974.

Since a 1972 U.S. statute barring the importation of a baby seal skins has not had the hoped-for effect of stopping or drastically reducing the slaughter, the pressure of world opinion seems to be needed. The issue is simple enough: Why destroy one more wild creature, that belongs in the ecosystem, for what amounts to frivolus purposes? — St. Louis Post-Dispatch

When the Cannon resevoir project first started, those who were supposed to know about such things predicted the ara would have an increase in population as a result.

That prediction is now a fact.

A recent unofficial census of Monroe County shows it now has around 400 more people than in 1970 when the last official nose count was made.

This has happened in spite of the fact that dozens of farm homes in the basin were bought by the government and the owners moved elsewhere.

The growth is an indication of what we may expect from now on, and one that will add to the economy of the entire area.

The county population now stands at slightly less than 10,000.

HE DIDN'T "DISCOVER" AMERICA

More and more, textooks are telling students that Columbus didn't "Discover" America– that people from several other nations were the first to see our shores long before Columbus was born.

And from archeological discoveries, it appears that travelers from Asia who walked across the Bering Straights, then a land bridge, were the real discoverers, and that the original settlers, the Indians, were descended from them.

Then there is the unauthenticated legend or story that two Indians got lost in the Atlantic several centuries before Columbus, ended up on the shores of Europe and thereby "discovered" it, instead of a European discovering America.

Ho hum.

But, with all these goings-on, isn't it about time we took that "discovery" title away from Columbus?

MISSOURI'S CONSUMER HOT LINE

When he was campaigning for the office of Missouri Attorney General, John D. Ashcroft announced that if elected he would install a consumer fraud hot line, enabling citizens to make inquiries about fraud and to report possible fraudulent practices which they had encountered. At the time he made the announcement, we applauded Ashcroft's idea, although we were later scolded by the Democratic nominee, who said he had already proposed the same thing. It appeared that 1976 was the year for consumer hot lines.

Despite his campaign pledge, we remained somewhat skeptical that Ashcroft would follow through on the hotline idea, given the usual post-election performances of most politicians. But sure enough, the state's Attorney General announced the installation of the service just the other day. The toll-free number is 1-800-392-8222.

Once again we applaud Ashcroft's concern with this continuous problem and voice the belief that the installation of the hotline will be of considerable assistance to citizens of Missouri who have been victimized by fraud, or at least believe they may have been. General Ashcroft's hot line is one more link between Missourians and their state government and we welcome it.

Internal Revenue Will Stop Using Informants

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Internal Revenue Service has relied upon confidential, often controversial informants to provide the leads that have helped convict mobsters across the country. It was also an informant who supplied the inside information that cracked the biggest corporate fraud case in tax history against the Fruehauf Trailer Company.

But the informant program is now in jeopardy. For two years, the General Accounting Office has been secretly studying the use of confidential informants and undercover agents. The final report, according to our sources, will criticize the program.

Former Commissioner Donald Alexander became disenchanted with informants after two disagreeable experiences:

1: Under Operation Sunshine, an undercover agent collected $54,961 to eavesdrop on bar conversations in Miami and Ft. Lauderdale. The operation produced allegations, none of which could be substantiated, against 913 people.

2: Under Project Haven, an undercover informant stole records of a Bahamian bank where wealthy tax evaders stashed their money.

Internal Revenue sources have defended both operations. But Alexander reacted by angrily slashing the funds for informants. The forthcoming report could lead to further cutbacks. Any more cutbacks, insiders warn, could cripple federal law enforcement efforts.

Footnote: The study was ordered by the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation reportedly at Alexander's instigation.

Grand Nepotism: Chile's dictator Augusto Pinochet, who prides himself on his reputation for financial integrity, has been accused of trying to throw his nephew a multimillion-dollar deal.

A confidential commercial document indicates that the dictator designated his sister's son, Rafael Saavedra Pinochet, to negotiate a $100 million loan for Chile. Such a deal could bring the middleman a finder's fee of over $1 million.

Sources in the banking community believe Chile sought a 10-year loan at a moderate interest rate from European banks. But apparently, the dictatorship settled for a $125 million loan at less advantageous terms from a consortium of Canadian, Latin American and New York banks. We understand the nephew did not profit from it.

But a Bolivian import-export firm, now called Medibol, Ltd., but formerly known as Rodur, tried unsuccessfully to arrange the earlier, $100 million loan.

In a confidential letter, dated March 12, 1976, the company notified its clients that it had just "established an exclusive commercial arrangement with Don Rafael Saavedra Pinochet, son of the sister of the president of chile, who will collaborate actively within our firm.

"Obviously, he is in contact at the highest levels of the neighboring republic (Chile)..." the letter stresses. "He has asked me to inform you, by the confidential order of President Pinochet himself, that the government has the greatest and most urgent concern in contracting with European banks for a $100 million credit."

The letter details the terms of the loan and then adds: "Mr. Saavedra Pinochet would be ready to help us, as well, on any other transaction now in progress or to be initiated within the commercial area among Spain, Bolivia and Chile."

We reached Medibol, Ltd., in LaPaz, Bolivia. A spokesman acknowledged the letter was authentic and said Pinochet's nephew is still associated with the firm.

But Chilean Ambassador Jorge Cauas, who was the finance minister at the time of Chile's frantic scramble for money, told us that only the finance minister could negotiate such a loan.

The respected Cauas insisted, therefore, that the letter's assumptions were wrong. He also assured us that the Chilean president did not permit his name to be used for financial gain by anyone. Cauas said he had negotiated the loan and, therefore, was personally aware that no Pinochet kin was involved. Other embassy sources insist Pinochet has little if any contact with his nephew.

Sparse Christmas: For federal agencies, Christmas comes in the spring when they make their annual pilgrimage to Capitol Hill to tell the appropriations committees what they want in their stockings. Invariably, they ask for more than they really need, on the theory that Congress will cut back their budget requests.

Yet contrary to all normal behavior, the Health, Education and Welfare Department is begging the Senate Appropriations Committee to reduce its funding.

In an amazing private letter, Secretary Joseph A. Califano, Jr., has pleaded with Subcommittee Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., to "eliminate" most of the $1.8 billion in increases already granted by a House subcommittee.

"I ask the subcommittee to reduce the amounts in the bill," wrote Califano. "We ask the Congress to join us in the steps that must be taken to hold down federal spending if we are to balance the budget by FY 1981."

THE SANS SOUCI AT HIGH NOON

WASHINGTON— As if we didn't have enough to worry about in Washington, it is now rumored that the Sans Souci Restaurant is no longer the "in" restaurant since the Carter crowd arrived in town. The nation's two leading newspapers, Women's Wear Daily and The National Enquirer, have both reported that the Sans Souci is out and a Carter appointee wouldn't be found dead here.

This came as a terrible blow to the elite clientele who eat lunch there every day. Those of us who have been dining through five Administrations have always considerred the Sans Souci the power center of the country.

We believed that no important decision was made in the government without it first being discussed at our restaurant over rognons de veau and Dover sole, served with either a respectable Mouton Rothschild or a chilled bottle of Pouilly Fuisse.

High-priced Washington lawyers and higher-priced Washington lobbyists did their business under the watchful eyes of high-priced columnists and television commentators.

The Sans Souci became synonymous with big government and power politics. KGB agents used it to plant stories on unsuspecting newspapermen. World Bank officials met with ministers of finance to negotiate multimillion-dollar loans. Heads of conglomerates used it to plot strategy against SEC regulations. Contractors worked over Army and Navy procurement officials to land contracts. New tax shelters were designed on the white tablecloths.

There was no doubt in anybody's mind that if you wanted to make a deal you had to come to the Sans Souci.

The publicity that the Sans Souci was not the "in" restaurant any more hurt us all. Every day we sat at our tables waiting, hoping, praying that someone from the Carter Administration would walk through the door.

The real problem for all of us was that no one knew what a person from the Carter White House looked like, and even if he did come there we wouldn't be aware of his presence.

Just the other day someone came in the restaurant in a leisure suit and sneakers. We all became excited because he was talking to Paul, the maitre d'hotel, with a Southern accent and he didn't seem to have a reservation.

"It could be one of them," a lobbyist at the next table said to me excitedly. "He seems to be shuffling."

"Carter people don't shuffle," I said. "They have style. Didn't you read Pat Caddell's memo?"

"I hope Paul gives him a table. Wouldn't it be terrible if the first Carter person ever to come to Sans Souci couldn't get in?" he said.

"Poor Paul," I said. "He's in a quandary. He has no way of knowing if the guy's a cotton farmer from South Carolina or Carter's national security adviser for Southeast Asia."

"I'd take a gamble," a lawyer from the Hogan & Hartson law firm said, "and let him in. We can't just sit here and wait forever."

"If we don't get someone from the Carter Administration soon," a defense contractor moaned, "our lunches will not be considered deductible."

Paul finally decided to give the man a table.

"Who is he?" we asked the maitre d' excitedly.

"He's a Carter intern working in the mail room," Paul said.

"The White House is back!" a columnist cried. "We can be considered an 'in' restaurant again."

"I knew they couldn't stay away," the lobbyist chortled. "No matter what Carter vowed, he needs the Sans Souci more than we need him."

I asked Paul for a telephone. When he brought it to the table I immediately dialed Women's Wear Daily and said to the editor, "Hold the presses!"

Today's news in brief

Porpoise plea to be entered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A California Republican is hoping to convince the House to go easy on the porpoise when lawmakers debate legislation this week to increase the number of marine mammals which tuna fishermen may kill. The tunaporpoise issue is at the top of the agenda as the House returns Wednesday from a fiveday Memorial Day recess. On Thursday, lawmakers turn their attention to President Carter's proposal for a Department of Energy.

Luggage allowance increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just in time for summer vacation, new rules are going into effect permitting travelers on most overseas flights to carry a lot more luggage. Beginning Wednesday, free baggage allowances on most flights will be based on the number of pieces a passenger is carrying and on their size rather than on weight, the Civil Aeronautics Board says.

Soviet arms test a failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's latest test of a satellite-destroying weapon, conducted despite an appeal from President Carter for a ban on such weapons, ended in apparent failure, U.S. intelligence sources believe. A Soviet interceptor satellite went past its target satellite at a distance of less than 50 miles in the test last week, Russia's first in about five months, the sources say.

Dutch to offer exchange

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — The Dutch government is trying to get the South Moluccans holding some 60 hostages to give up their guns as well as their prisoners in exchange for a flight out of the country, a Justice Ministry spokesman said today in The Hague. Officials said the Moluccans offered Monday to release their prisoners if they were supplied a plane to take them to another country.

Mrs. Carter plans visit

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Rosalynn Carter visits a former U.S. sugar plantation now owned by the workers today following talks with Jamaican officials about their economic problems, Cuba and the weather. The U.S. First Lady, after spending the first day of her seven-nation Latin American tour in official receptions and private meetings with government officials, gets out in the countryside to talk to cane cutters who have become manager-owners of the third largest sugar plantation on the Caribbean island.

Javits warns Third World

PARIS (AP) — Sen. Jacob Javits warned the Third World today to react "with reasonableness" to the Carter administration's offers or risk losing the sympathy of the American people. The New York Republican and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D+Conn., both defended the administration against complaints from underdeveloped nations at the 27-nation "NorthSouth Conference on International Cooperation that it is offering them nothing new to solve their basic economic problems.

Alleged rapist arraigned

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A man Kansas City police say may be the "pillowcase rapist" has been arraigned in Jackson County magistrate court on charges of rape, robbery and burglary.

Robert L. Fellows, 26, Kansas City, was ordered held without bond in the county jail Monday following his appearance before Magistrate Leonard S. Hughes.

Fellows was arrested Sunday after a man under police surveillance allegedly broke into a midtown apartment, raped a woman there and stole some money and personal property belonging to the woman.

Hughes entered a plea of not guilty for Fellows and said the case would be presented to the Jackson County grand jury Friday.

Police said they were investigating Fellows in connection with 13 rapes that have occurred in the city since last June. In each case, the assailant placed a pillowcase over the head of his victim during the attack.

421 die during holiday

At least 421 persons died on the nation's highways during the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

The Associated Press count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight in each of the times zones Monday.

The National Safety Council had estimated that 400 to 500 persons could die over the 78-hour holiday period.

In 1968, a record 629 persons were killed during a four-day Memorial Day observance.

Last year 442 persons were killed over the same weekend, which is the unofficial beginning of summer.

Lobby group makes request

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale is being urged to hold up signing a pay increase for state lawmakers until a conflict of interest measure is approved by them.

Common Cause in Missouri, a group calling itself a citizens' lobby, wrote Teasdale last week advising him to delay signing the bill. Under it, lawmakers' salaries would be increased from $8,400 per year to $15,000, and it would go into effect in 1979.

The conflict of interest measure, which was approved earlier this year by the House, is awaiting Senate consideration, but is far down its agenda.

"With only three weeks left in the legislative session, the chances of enacting the ethics bill are slimmer every day," said Amelia Delaney, Common Cause state direcgtor.

The Senate could only reach the bill by suspending its rules to take it out of order, a procedure seldom resorted to in the tradition-bound Senate.

"House leadership justified higher salaries by endorsing a legislative code of conduct," she said. "The Senate apparently has made salary increase their first priority and has allowed the conflicts bill to lage behind at least 30 other bills of less significance."

Court refuses canal case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to immediately consider whether the Carter administration has the constitutional power to surrender control of the Panama Canal Zone to Panama.

The justices turned down a request by six members of Congress and a U.S. citizen living in the Canal Zone that the court expedite consideration of their appeal from a lower court.

The appeal charges that the President and secretary of state have no power to enter into a treaty giving away control of a U.S. territory. It claims that such power is reserved specifically for Congress by the Constitution.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington last month upheld a lower court's ruling that the suit was not "ripe for judicial determination."

In seeking a quick review by the Supreme Court, the congressmen argued that not only is the constitutional question "ripe," but that it may be rendered irrelevant very soon because of the Carter administration's commitment "to a completed treaty proposal which will deliver the Canal Zone or some major part of it to the Republic of Panama within the next few weeks."

The court's action today does not mean the court never will consider the merits of the appeal. The justices still can vote to hear arguments in the case at a later date.

The lawsuit challenging the administration's power to take such action was filed in January 1976 by Sens. Jesse Helms, R+N.C., James McClure, R+Idaho, and Strom Thurmond, R+S.C., Reps. Daniel Flood, D+Pa., Lawrence McDonald, D+Ga., and Gene Snyder, R+Ky., and William R. Drummond, a civilian living in the Canal Zone.

What's the law?

The case of the banished wife

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Lois made two very bad mistakes. The first was in leaving her husband Rufus, and the second was in asking him to take her back.

"Sure, I'll take you back," he told her, "but for a while you're going to have to live out in the bunkhouse with the hired help until I think you've properly repented. Out there, you'll be able to repent in leisure for having run away from me in haste."

Lois, however, had no intention of living in the bunkhouse, and as soon as she heard her husband's conditions for taking her back, she left him again. This time, however, Rusus started an action against her to end their marriage on the grounds of desertion.

"I'm a generous man," confessed Rufus to the judge, "and while I offered to take Lois back once, I'm not going to do it twice. This time she's had it."

"Banishing me to the bunkhouse," responded Lois, "was hardly what you would call taking me back. On the contrary, it was like sending me to Siberia. No wife has to put up with that!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Rufus a divorce on the grounds of Lois' desertion?

This is how the judge ruled: NO. The judge held that when a wife deserts a husband and offers to return, she is entitled to be taken back under terms that are not inconsistent with her self-respect – and having to live out in a bunkhouse with the hired help was not consistent with that self-respect.

The independence of the United States is commemorated by the salute to the Union — one gun for each state — fired at noon on July 4 at all military posts with suitable artillery.

The first third-party presidential candidate was William Wirt, who ran in the 1832 election on the Anti-Masonic ticket.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader warns against the psychiatrist habit

Dear Ann: A reader who had spent several years going to a "shrink" wrote to warn others against becoming hooked on a very expensive habit. That was ME.

I became so dependent on my psychiatrist that for two years I lived for my weekly appointment -- waiting for her to wave a magic wand and solve my problems. Finally she got tired of saying, "I am NOT your mother," and arranged for me to see a male therapist.

He never said more than two sentences during a session. I soon found myself loosening up and doing a lot of verbalizing. Finally I talked myself into some confidence.

Now, 12 years later, I still have the same problems, an immature husband, and a self-centered, demanding mother, but I've learned that the world won't fall to piece if I say, "NO."

I still have periods of depression but I am able to cope and my children are doing much better, too. The second therapist didn't solve my problems but he did do something that was much more important. He put me in touch with the only person in the world who could manage my life. ME. -- Thanks, Dr. L.

Dear Friend: You had two good therapists, dear. The first, because she was wise (and secure) enough to send you to someone else -- and Dr. L., who knew precisely how to deal with you.

Dear Ann: You advised "Blushing But Tongue Tied" to tell the gentleman, "You've forgotten to zip your zipper." I was shocked at your insensitivity. If carried out that advice could be devastating.

No gentleman knowingly walks around with his zipper undone. If a woman called such a thing to my attention, I would be mortified. -- Southern School

Dear S.S.: Sorry, but you're badly outnumbered. I took a survey among several male employees of the Chicago Sun-Times and the Chicago Daily News. The vote was 29 in favor of being told and one against. The one against said, "It all depends . . ." but he didn't say what it depended on.

I received approximately 250 letters from readers who suggested the "well-known" code, "X-Y-Z," which means, "Examine Your Zipper." I had never heard the phrase before. When I was young they used buttons. The zipper hadn't been invented!

Dear Ann: Six months ago I obtained a separation from my husband with the understanding that I would go back to him if he quit gambling.

He's still at it. Does a chronic gambler have to hit bottom like an alcoholic before he decides to straighten out his life?

I suggested Gamblers Anonymous but he won't go. I've never had children for this reason. He'd like a family. Should I get pregnant? Would moving to another state help him? Or, should I, at 31, look for a brighter future with someone else? -- Competing With A Horse

Dear Competing: Moving won't help. Having a family won't help. Gamblers Anonymous has rescued thousands and it may be the answer for him.

Tell your horse-lover he can take his choice. Try G.A. (it's in the phone book) or "Bye Bye." If he won't make the effort to help himself, leave him at the post.

Schools out-bored kids?

By Kay Neill,
Area Child & Family Development Specialist

BENTON — School's out, and this means adjustments for everyone. Whether you're a parent, grandparent, neighbor, or friend to some child, you can help the summer go a little more smoothly for all of us.

First of all, find out what's available in your own community. Utilize your library. Most libraries offer special summer programs, such as a story hour. Check out your local churches. Vacation Bible schools welcome visitors and helpers. Many churches coordinate youth activities as well.

If the kids you know are not involved in any structured groups, look into Scouts and 4-H. Of course, these programs need leaders, so you may have opportunity to assist. Scouts and 4-H offer a wide variety of activities. Another alternative is craft classes taught by various shops in the area.

We must not forget summer sports. Ball leagues are available for boys and girls. Then there's tennis, swimming, roller-skating, bowling, horseback riding, etc. This is a great time for everyone to get in shape and enjoy nature.

All kids like to earn extra money, and more important you may wish to teach some responsibility. Think of various jobs and get the neighborhood kids involved. Here are some examples: wash windows, have a garage sale, run errands, wash the car, help in the garden. For teenagers, volunteer work provides great learning experiences.

Summer can be a special time for the family. Plan several outings. Take the family on a picnic to a new and different place. Do some fishing. Get away from the heat and explore a few museums. Visit nearby campuses. As a family, you can have a super time and help everyone enjoy the summer. Let's think of alternatives when the kids say, "I have nothing to do."

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION PROGRAMS ARE OPEN TO ALL.

Afraid You're Going Deaf?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

True, all hearing problems are not alike . . . and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But audiologists report that many can. So, send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 9216, Beltone Electronics. 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Ill. 60646.

CUCUMBER BUTTERMILK

Minced fresh dill may be added.

2 medium cucumbers
2 cups buttermilk
¾ to 1 teaspoon salt

Pare cucumbers and cut in half lengthwise; with a sturdy spoon, scoop out seeds and discard. Cut cucumbers into chunks; puree them along with the buttermilk in an electric blender. Stir in salt. Serve at once or chill. Makes 4 servings.

At Wit's End

Erma talks about people and looks

I sat next to a really neat lady at a luncheon the other week who got to talking about braces on the teeth ... hers.

She said, "How come you never mentioned my braces?"

I stared awkwardly into her fruit cocktail and said, "I don't know ... I guess I didn't want to make you self-conscious."

"I'm not," she said. "You are. It's funny, kids are great about it. They'll come right up and say, 'When do they come off?' or 'Wouldn't you kill for a caramel?' but not adults. They act like they don't see them."

It occurred to me adults are that way about a lot of things. People make such a flap about face and body lifts. I personally considered Eleanor Roosevelt the most beautiful woman I ever met, but if something bothers you and you can still get the parts, I say go for it!

Or, as a wise friend of mine once said, "To heck with my ironing board, let's put the silicone right up front where everyone can see it."

There is something admirable about a woman (or man) who works on perpetual maintenance. My mother-in-law went through extensive and expensive bridge work at the age of 74. Another woman in her 60s got a face lift and it make such a difference to her. Too often, we're intimidated by age. Everything becomes predictable. Age age 20, the teeth go, at 30, the skin dries up, at 40, the eyes dim, at 50, all the muscles relax and bag around your knees, and at 60 you fall asleep during a tax audit.

I defy you to gather a group of women (or men) and find one who is totally happy with the way she looks. One friend of mine confessed she hated her nose.

"What's wrong with it?" I asked, "it works, doesn't it?"

"That's not the point," she said. "It looks like George C. Scott's."

"So?"

"So, I can't act."

She had the nose altered and I swear I never saw the difference, but she did.

The mind is also not exempt from the self-improvement route. People who are college graduates are the first to admit it's overrated. I knew people who graduated with honors who couldn't operate a pay toilet. But another friend of mine lived for the day when she could enroll in the university and unlock the doors of ignorance.

Whatever stands in the way of your self-confidence ... whether it's an overbite, toeing inward, a 30-pound honker, hips like saddlebags, weak eyes, a guest for Thoreau, wrinkle city, hamster hair or a concave chest, fix it.

I know I never started to live until I lost ten pounds ... five off of each upper arm.

Foyt 'the stooge' wins 4th Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Aging but ageless A.J. Foyt, pocketing the biggest paycheck of his long and already legendary racing career, humbly called himself "just the stooge" who does the driving.

"I'm really a man of few words. There's not much to say," the first four-time winner of the Indianapolis 500 somberly told about 2,000 persons at the annual victory banquet Monday night.

SIKESTON, MO.

Foyt, who finished 28 seconds ahead of runner-up Tom Sneva in Sunday's 61st running of the 500, earned $259,791 — more than $88,000 more than he received for his third victory 10 years ago.

This year's top prize was not a record, but it made the 42-year-old Foyt the first $1 million winner in Indy history.

"We've had good days, and we've had bad days," said the Houston driver, who extended his Indy record to 20 consecutive starts. "It's been a long, long wait. But myself and my crew, we were not going to quit. We never quit. We just kept coming back."

Foyt finished second to Johnny Rutherford in last year's rain-shortened race — one which he felt he could have won had it gone the distance. He complained bitterly at that time that Rutherford, similarly locked into second place a year earlier when rain gave Bobby Unser the victory, had taken unfair advantage of yellow caution lights to improve his position.

But no protest was filed, and Foyt — angry but not discouraged — vowed to keep trying.

Foyt, Rutherford and Mario Andretti all topped 200 miles per hour during practice this year, and Foyt qualified in fourth position — behind pole-winner Sneva and the Unser brothers, Bobby and Al, both two-time Indy winners.

Rutherford, who started in the middle of the pack after an unsuccessful gamble to wrest the No. 1 spot from Sneva, was the first to be forced out. He blew an engine on the 11th lap and finished 33rd, but his paycheck of $19,472 still was a record for last place.

Most of the race was a duel between Foyt and Gordon Johncock, who led 129 of the 200 laps around the 2½-mile track.

Johncock fell behind by 22 seconds before Foyt made a crucial pit stop on the 182nd lap, but the 1973 winner regained the lead the next time around when Foyt went in for his final pit stop. Johncock passed Foyt just as he was leaving the pits, setting up what appeared to be a wheel-to-wheel race to the finish.

But on the next lap, Johncock's engine blew. He slowed up and stopped as Foyt took the lead for good. Sneva, who set official records of 200.535 m.p.h. for one lap and 198.884 for four laps in qualifications, moved up to second. But Foyt's lead at that time was an insurmountable 35 seconds.

It turned out that Sneva, finishing 28.63 seconds behind Foyt, actually lost the race in the pits. He made 10 stops to Foyt's nine, and spent 48 seconds more than Foyt in the pits.

Sneva, who led only three laps during the race, earned $109,947.

Al Unser, whose $271,697 prize for winning the 1970 race is the record, pocketed $66,232 for third place this year. Wally Dallenbach, fourth-place finisher at Indy two years in a row, won $41,192, and Johnny Parsons, son of the 1950 winner, received $33,170 for fifth place.

The rest of the top 10 were Tom Bigelow, $30,466; Lee Kunzman, $29,129; Roger McCluskey, $27,256; Steve Krisiloff, $26,653, and Jerry Sneva, Tom's younger brother, $23,416. Jerry, driving in his first championship car race, got an additional $2,000 as Rookie of the Year.

Johncock, his total boosted by an extra $150 for each of his 129 laps in front of the pack, wound up with $45,417 for 11th.

Rookie Janet Guthrie, the first woman driver in the Indy 500, said it was "still somewhat incredulous" finding herself in the company of the 32 male drivers. She won $16,556 — her largest paycheck ever — for a 29th-place finish.

"I will definitely be back next year," said the 39-year-old Miss Guthrie.

The total purse — topping $1 million for the eighth straight year — was $1,116,807, breaking the former record of $1,037,276 set last year.

Improved defense means first victory for Alexander & Saints

What a difference defense can make!

In his first Bi-State League start Saints lefthander Glen Alexander was loser as his mates made six errors behind him. Sunday those same teammates played errorless ball and Alexander completely baffled the Ste. Genevieve hitters with a four-hitter as Sikeston won 4-1. It was the first win, and the first complete game, of the year for the Sikeston team, as well as the talented hurler.

Ste. Genevieve was getting some pitching help also. Mike Grieshaber and Charles Brown held the Saints hitters to just five hits, but issued five walks and were victims of three errors, all by shortstop Wayne Armbruster. Three of the Saint hits were bunched in a three-run fourth. The defeat dropped the Yanks' record to 1-3.

Alexander fought the heat and a pesky hole beside the pitching rubber to dominate the Ste. Genevieve hitters. He retired the side in order in four of the nine innings and, after Rick Eisenbach's relay throw from the outfield nailed a runner at the plate, Alexander retired nine of the last ten hitters.

Rick Eisenbach started the fourth-inning rally with an infield hit and went to second on a wide throw. Jim Saulter doubled the shortstop in with the Saints' first run. A double by Jeff Jackson socred Saulter and gave Sikeston a 2-1 lead.

Starter Grieshaber left the game with a blister on his pitching hand and Brown was greeted by a sacrifice fly off the bat of Sammy Taylor, scoring Jackson. The Saints led 3-1.

Sikeston scored the final run in the last of the eighth on a walk to Eisenbach, a stolen base and a wild pitch.

Ste. Genevieve scored its only run in the top of the fourth on a walk, wild pitch and a single by Dave Buatte.

Alexander allowed two hits in an inning only once and had a one-hitter going through five innings.

The Saints next home game is Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. against the Cape Capahas. Jeff Jackson is slated to start the non-league game.

Eckersley serves up no-hitter

CLEVELAND (AP) — "I didn't talk to anybody," Dennis Eckersley said of his conduct in the Cleveland Indians' dugout while on his way to pitching a no-hitter. "I told the only guy who tried to talk to me to shut up. I just wanted to concentrate."

The tension broke after the 22-year-old right-hander struck out Gil Flores for his 12th strikeout and sealed a 1-0 victory over Frank Tanana and the California Angels Monday night.

"It's not a matter of how good a pitcher you are," said Eckersley, who now has pitched 16 2-3 consecutive no-hit innings, counting his last start.

"It's a matter of how lucky you are. There are a lot of good pitchers who never get a no-hitter."

The 13,400 fans at Cleveland Stadium cheered Eckersley's every pitch in the ninth. After Eckersley fell behind Bobby Grich 2-1, catcher Ray Fosse went to the mound for a reassuring word. Eckersley then fired two strikes.

Runner-up turns out to be winner in Atlanta Classic

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Veriato didn't win, but he did come away from the Atlanta Classic with something important: the right to continue as a professional golfer.

Veriato, 31, had won only $454 on the tour this year and had to have $7,000 by season's end to retain his card as an approved tour player.

In Sunday's final round of the classic, he came in one stroke behind Hale Irwin to finish in second place and take home $22,800.

"Up until now, everything in my life has been a failure," said Veriato. "I've been awfully discouraged at times. I've thought about quitting trying to play golf for a living.

"But this wasn't a failure," he said. "It gives me the courage to go on."

Some of the game's greatest players took their best shot at Veriato, including Irwin, Jack Nicklaus, PGA champ Dave Stockton, and former U.S. Open king Lou Graham.

But the 135-pounder, facing pressure he'd never before experienced, calmly carded a four-under-par 68 in the final round and finished with a 274.

"My hat's off to him," said Irwin, who won the title in 1975. The tournament was not played last year.

"He came through when he needed to — and he needed to," said Irwin who took home first-prize money of $40,000.

Graham finished the final round with a 68 and a total of 276 for third place. Lanny Wadkins had a par 72 and 277 for fourth and Nicklaus was next with a 68-278.

"I was just trying to win $7,000," said Veriato. "I'm very happy. That's the best I've ever played."

Blues' Gassoff killed in motorcycle crash

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Funeral arrangements for St. Louis Blues hockey defenseman Bob Gassoff were pending Monday. Gassoff, 24, was killed Sunday night in a motorcycle accident about 30 miles west of St. Louis.

Gassoff and other Blues players living in the St. Louis area were attending a barbeque at the farm of Blues teammate Garry Unger, just before the accident.

Defenseman Bruce Affleck and Gassoff were riding trail bikes on Franklin County route M, when the accident occurred, defenseman Bob Plager said.

Gassoff was killed when he apparently crossed the center line and ran head-on into a car driven by Douglas Kelkamp, 19, of rural Villa Ridge, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

The 5-foot-10, 195-pound native of Quesnel, B.C., had bought a home in suburban Richmond Heights. Gassoff's wife, Diane, is expecting her first child.

Gassoff was drafted in 1973 in the third round and played part of his first two seasons with the Blues. The last two were with the Blues.

Last season he tallied six goals and 18 assists. In 245 career National Hockey League games, he had 11 goals and 47 assists. He accumulated 866 penalty minutes during his career.

Dark likes what he sees in Padres

"We've got a lot of young players, a lot of good ones. I've got to find out who can do what," Alvin Dark said.

The new manager of the San Diego Padres took a look at just about everyone and found out that Mike Ivie can hit the ball.

The Padres set a National League record by using 41 players in their doubleheader sweep of the San Francisco Giants 12-8 and 9-8 Monday and the teams set a major league record by using 74 players in the twinbill.

"Well, I got a look at all of them," said Dark, who took over his new job a few hours before the Memorial Day doubleheader and made one key change — moving Ivie from the No. 5 spot to third in the batting order.

Ivie responded with seven hits for the day, including a record-tying five doubles.

"It's the kind of day you dream about," Ivie said.

In other NL games Monday, Montreal swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets 5-1 and 3-2, St. Louis crushed the Chicago Cubs 14-0, Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh 6-4, Cincinnati downed Atlanta 7-3 and Houston stopped Los Angeles 5-3.

"I always thought he (Ivie) would be a good No. 3 hitter because he makes good contact," Dark said. "He's not too fast, but when he hits the ball like that, he doesn't have to be."

Ivie tied a major league mark when he doubled twice in a seven-run seventh-inning burst that carried the Padres to victory in the opener. His five doubles in the twinbill tied a NL record shared by three other players.

George Hendrick homered in each game for San Diego, which extended its winning streak to four games.

Cardinals 14, Cubs 0

Lou Brock had four hits, driving in four runs, Jerry Mumphrey chased home three runs and Ken Reitz smacked a two-run homer, powering St. Louis past Chicago.

The Cards battered Chicago pitching for 21 hits as left-hander Pete Falcone, 2-5, pitched a six-hitter. St. Louis scored three runs in the fourth, chasing loser Mike Krukow, 4-3, then erupted for nine runs in the sixth, snapping the Cubs' winning streak at five games.

Astros 5, Dodgers 3

Joaquin Andujar, with last-inning help from Ken Forsch, pitched a five-hitter and Houston erupted for four runs in the second inning in handing Los Angeles its third straight defeat — the longest Dodgers losing string of the season.

Houston scored four runs in the second inning on singles by Enos Cabell, Art Howe and Cesar Cedeno and Dodgers shortstop Ted Martinez' error.

Phillies 6, Pirates 4

Tim McCarver slammed a three-run double in the first inning and Ted Sizemore cracked a fifth-inning homer as Philadelphia handed Pittsburgh its fourth straight defeat. Steve Carlton, 7-2, went the route as the Phillies gained their fourth straight triumph.

Reds 7, Braves 3

A two-run triple by Ken Griffey sparked a four-run eighth-inning rally, giving Cincinnati its victory over Atlanta. Pete Rose singled home Cesar Geronimo, snapping a 3-3 tie, Griffey scored pinch-runner Ed Armsbrister and Rose with his triple and Joe Morgan singled home Griffey.

Expos 5-3, Mets 1-2

Tony Perez slammed a two-run homer in the first game and Andre Dawson connected with one on in the nightcap as Montreal swept a doubleheader from New York.

Steve Rogers fired a four-hitter in the first game and Perez socked his sixth home run of the year. In the nightcap, Dawson's second home run of the season gave Stan Bahnsen, making his first appearance for the Expos since being acquired from Oakland, the victory.

Blazing Blazers roar to 129-107 romp over Sixers

PORTLAND (AP) — Suddenly, the Philadelphia 76ers have something to think about.

The Portland Trail Blazers put some thoughts in their heads Sunday, unleashing a torrid fast break for a 129-107 victory and cutting their deficit in the National Basketball Association championship finals to 2-1.

The Blazers can even the best-of-seven playoff series with a victory tonight (CBS, 9 p.m. EDT) on their home floor, where they have won their last 16 in a row and are 44-5 for the year.

It was the way the Blazers won Sunday's game that has got the Sixers thinking. After two lackadaisical performances, they came roaring out of the starting gate and ripped off a 20-4 burst in the first quarter to grab an 18-point lead, then buried the Sixers beneath a 42-point fourth quarter.

"We can't come out Tuesday and dig ourselves another hole like that," said Philadelphia's George McGinnis. "Portland is a good club, and now that the series is 2-1 they have something to fight for."

The 107 points which were enough to win the first two games for Philadelphia were far too few for Game Three.

"Portland played a very aggressive game, especially on defense," said Sixers Coach Gene Shue. "We had too many defensive and rebounding breakdowns. They got control early and we played catch-up all day."

"We want to win Tuesday," said superstar Julius Erving, who led the Sixers with 28 points.

New-look lineup brings best in Cards' attack

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Manager Vern Rapp maintained he experienced "good vibes" while making out his National League club's lineup.

Small wonder. The batting order Rapp assembled came up with 21 hits, the Cardinals' biggest total of the year, and manufactured a 14-0 romp over the Chicago Cubs Monday.

Lou Brock led the way with four hits, driving in as many runs, and Ken Reitz smacked his third homer in four games as St. Louis interrupted a Cubs winning streak at five games.

But afterward, while discussing the key, Rapp pointed to Bake McBride's three hits, three runs, stolen base and two RBI in a leadoff role as vital.

"I like Mac leading off," said Rapp, who has spotted the often-injured McBride in center field while making use of a strong supporting cast in the early part of the season.

"He puts the ball in play and he's got good speed," explained Rapp. "It's nothing against anybody else who's been leading off, but he shows me something."

What McBride demonstrated to his manager went double for Chicago, which was the victim of his irrepressible talents throughout.

The lithe outfielder's single and stolen base, combined with two grounders, snapped a scoreless deadlock in the third inning.

An inning later, McBride lofted a sacrifice fly to produce a 2-0 lead and in the sixth, as the Cards erupted for nine runs, he chipped in two singles and scored twice more.

"I kind of like the lineup we had today, too," said McBride, who is on a .429 hitting rampage in his last 10 games. "Any lineup that's got me in it I like."

In addition to the lusty hitting of Brock, Reitz and McBride, the St. Louis attack included three hits by Jerry Mumphrey which helped boost the club's team batting mark to .291.

Splittorff on a streak; wins again for Royals

TORONTO (AP) — Paul Splittorff of the Kansas City Royals, by his own admission, is a streak pitcher.

"My career has been up and down like a roller coaster," the 30-year-old left-hander said Monday night after allowing just five hits in the Royals' 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. "I've had ups and downs every year, but they seem to balance out in my favor."

Splittorff is on a hot streak now.

In his last three starts—all victories—he has pitched 23 2-3 innings and allowed just two earned runs for a 0.76 earned-run average. The streak has helped square his record at 4-4 and lower his season ERA from 4.72 to 3.58.

One of his bad streaks came in 1974 when the Royals lost 27 of their last 31 games and Splittorff lost seven consecutive decisions.

Last season, Splittorff overcame a 3-6 start and won eight games in a row, a Royals record. Splittorff also holds team records for victories, innings pitched, starts and shutouts and became the first Kansas City pitcher to win 20 games when he had a 20-11 record in 1973.

Splittorff said he began to tire in the seventh inning Monday. Reliever Larry Gura pitched to one batter in the eighth and Mark Littell completed the game, earning his sixth save of the season.

"I'm basically a warm weather pitcher," Splittorff said. "In the seventh inning, I had trouble getting loose because of the cold, and I began to tire."

Time Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

The incident at St. Louis this past Thursday involving umpire Paul Pryor and Phillie second baseman Ted Sizemore reminds us again of the integrity that the men in blue maintain while doing their jobs.

The incident I'm talking about, of course, was Pryor's ruling that Sizemore did not have possession of the baseball after he had speared Garry Templeton's line drive, and the winning run scored for the Cardinals because of that decision. Having been present at the game and having viewed the play first hand, I am in a position to offer my humble opinion on the controversy. Not on the accuracy of Pryor's judgement, but on the guts it took for him to make the call he did.

For those who haven't yet heard or read the events that transpired in the tenth inning Thursday, here is what happened:

With the bases loaded and two out, Templeton hit a line drive that appeared headed for center field for the game-winning bse-hit. Sizemore went to his right, and with his body fully extended and his arm outstretched, grabbed the baseball in mid-air, much to the disappointment of the crowd. But as Sizemore hit the ground and rolled over twice on the dirt, the ball squirted out of his glove. Pryor gave the safe sign, and Tony Scott trotted home with the winning run for the Redbirds. The final score was 4-3.

In all honesty, I thought Sizemore made a legitimate catch, and coming from a true-blue (or red) Cardinal fan, that's saying a lot. Most of the spectators sitting around me thought so too. But, of course, we weren't as close to the play as was Paul Pryor.

But my hat goes off to the umpire, not because he called the play in favor of the Redbirds, but because he called it the way he saw it.

It would have been easy enough for Pryor to rule that it was a legal catch. The Cardinals might have put up a token argument, just to make it look good in front of the home folks, but not much. And there would have been no violent protest from the spectators. As we mentioned earlier, most of them were convinced that Sizemore had made a spectacular play for the second game in a row and that the Cardinals and Phils were headed into the eleventh. That decision would have been the easiest way out.

But, being the professional that he is, Pryor refused to compromise by taking "the easy way out". His judgment told him that Sizemore did not have full possession of the baseball, and it was a matter of integrity for him to call the play that way. And I'd bet that if the game were played in Philadelphia, in front of the Phillies' home town fans, Pryor would call the play the same way.

Jack Buck was justified in choosing Paul Pryor for his "Star of the Game" interview.

Former SHS gridder and thinclad Curtis Bean will be competing in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships beginning next Thursday, June 2, and continuing through June 4.

Bean earned the trip to Champaign, Illinois for the prestigious NCAA event by meeting qualifying standard in his specialty, the long jump. The Standard hopes to provide reports on the Ohio University athlete's progress in the meet.

Congratulations, Curits!

We hope all our readers enjoyed this year's Golf Section, which appeared as a supplement to Thursday's Daily Standard.

Although this year's was not as large in volume as it has been in years past, we'd like to think that it was superior in quality.

I'd like to personally thank Dale Forbis and new staffer Mike Marsh for their work toward the project. They received no by-lines, but that doesn't mean that their contributions weren't significant.

Thanks guys.

New bat, new swing help Parrish belt 3 homers

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Larry Parrish went to a heavier bat to smash three home runs, but timely tips may have helped more.

The Montreal third baseman, after clubbing a home run, already had three hits and an admitted "tendency to overswing" Sunday.

"Mickey Vernon Expos coach came up to me and said, 'Don't swing too hard. Just go up there and try to make good contact,' " recalled Parrish.

"That's how you get most of your home runs," Parrish added after following with solo blasts in the seventh inning of a 5-for-5 day that helped Montreal trounce the St. Louis Cardinals 14-4. "It was good advice."

Parrish, who was hitting .237 at the day's start, drove in five of the Expos runs in a 14-hit Montreal assault off the Cards' Bob Forsch, 7-2, and three pitching successors.

A two-run Parrish single finished Forsch as the Expos sent 12 batters to the plate in an eight-run first inning, and Parrish singled and scored again two innings later.

St. Louis rookie John Urrea was then the victim of Prrish's home runs in the fifth and seventh inning and Butch Metzger served up No. 3 in the final inning as Montreal arrested a four-game skid.

"I'd been overdue," said the 6-foot-3 Parrish, who prior to the day had been rested for five games before returning to the slump-ridden Expos lineup Saturday night.

"A lot if times, especially in Jarry Park when we played there, I'd hit the ball hard but the wind held it up and it wouldn't go out. You'd wind up talking to yourself and wondering what to do next.

"It's hard to say when I ever had three in one day," mused Parrish. "I never had a day like this. I'd had two home runs but never three. The only time I ever hit three home runs was in slow pitch softball."

The noisy Montreal beginning, the National League club's biggest inning of the season, enabled left-hander Dan Warthen, 2-2, to pitch the distance on a yield of eight hits.

"He was on the verge of coming out. He had control problems," said Manager Dick Williams. "In the bottom of the fifth, he had one more pitch."

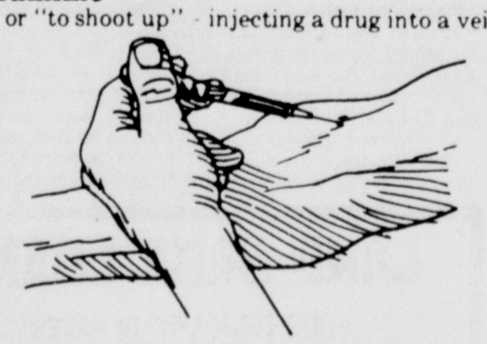
We think the average parent should know as much about drugs as the average pusher.

Sometime soon you'll want to talk with your teenagers about drugs. The sooner the better. We hope this page gives you something to start talking about. Because we want you to get to your kids before somebody else does.

THE OPIATES
When most people refer to "narcotics" this group of drugs is what they are talking about. Opiates are used medically as pain killers. On the street they cause pain for the user and society in general.

Mainline
or "to shoot up" - injecting a drug into a vein.



"A Hit"
street slang for an injection of drugs.

A Bag
packet of drugs, or a single dose of an opiate. Amount of the drug in the bag is denoted by price, a nickel bag ($5), a dime bag ($10).

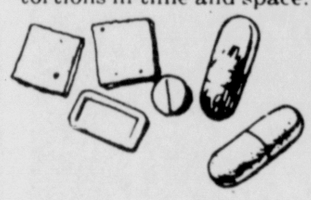
THE STIMULANTS
These drugs stimulate the system, or make a person more lively. While they are not physically addictive like the opiates, they produce a psychological dependence or craving.

Amphetamines
these stimulants are taken in tablet or capsule form, or injected into the blood stream. Among the widely used amphetamines are:
Dexedrine - or "dex" or "dexies".
Benzedrine - or "bennies".
Methedrine - or "speed" or "crystal meth".
Biphetamine - or "footballs".

PSYCHEDELICS
The medical classification of all mind altering substances. "Psychedelics" change a person's perception of his surroundings.

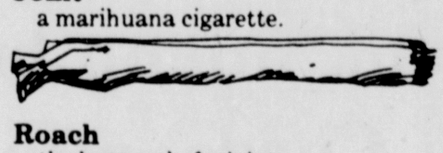
Hallucinogens
Those psychedelics which cause hallucinations.

LSD
probably the most powerful psychedelic. Reactions to LSD are extremely unpredictable. Distortions in time and space. Brighter colors. Vivid sounds. Feelings of strangeness. A sense of beauty in common objects. Sometimes fear and panic. Sometimes even psychosis.



Marihuana
the crushed and chopped leaves and flowers from the hemp plant. Sometimes smoked in cigarette form. Sometimes smoked in pipes. Reactions can be: a giddy feeling like drunkenness; changes in perception and mood; feelings of well-being or fear; and possibly hallucinations. Slang terms for marihuana are "grass" or "pot".

Joint
a marihuana cigarette.



Roach
the butt end of a joint.

Barbiturates
these drugs are in the group called sedatives - medicines to make you sleepy. Barbiturates are taken in capsule or tablet form. They cause physical dependence (addiction), and after repeated use, physical withdrawal does occur when these drugs are discontinued. Among the common commercial names for barbituates are:
Seconal or "red devils"
Nembutal or "yellow jackets"
Amutal or "blue heavens" or "blue-devils"
Luminal or "purple hearts"
Tuinal or "rainbows" or "double trouble"

"The solution of the drug problem in Sikeston cannot be accomplished by school officials, the police department, or any other single group within our community. It will demand the cooperation, interest/concern of all...parents, young people, city officials, school personnel..EVERYONE..!! I believe the TIP program is a step in the right direction."

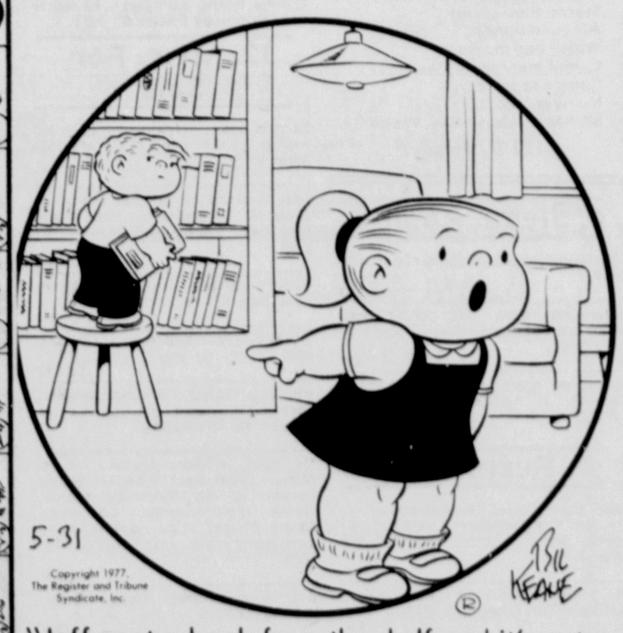
THE FAMILY CIRCUS. By Bil Keane



"Jeffy got a book from the shelf and it's not a Dr. Seuss!"

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, May 31, the 151st day of 1977. There are 214 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1910, the Union of South Africa was founded.

On this date:

In 1740, Frederick William I of Prussia died and was succeeded by Frederick II, who became known as Frederick the Great.

In 1793, the Reign of Terror began in the French Revolution.

In 1889, more than 2,000 lives were lost in a flood at Johnstown, Pa.

In 1916, British and German fleets fought in the Battle of Jutland off Denmark. It was the only major engagement between the two fleets in World War I.

In 1943, in World War II, the French naval squadron at Alexandria, Egypt joined the Allies.

In 1962 former Nazi Adolf Eichmann was executed in Israel after his capture in Argentina and trial on charges of war crimes.

Ten years ago: Western diplomats in Nigeria began arrangements to evacuate their nationals because of the threat of warfare.

Five years ago: President Richard M. Nixon met with Communist officials in Warsaw, Poland.

One year ago: The estranged wife of former Attorney General John Mitchell, Martha Mitchell, died of cancer at the age of 57.

Today's birthdays: Prince Rainier of Monaco is 54. Pro-football quarterback Joe Namath is 34.

Thought for today: The world is like a grand staircase. Some are going up, and some are going down. — an Italian saying.

Time near to apply dinoseb on corn

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

BENTON — Last year several thousand acres of corn in Southeast Missouri were treated with Dinoseb, commonly referred to as dinitro, as a biostimulant.

Dinitro was the primary chemical used, but Spark was also used on several acres. Most of the chemicals was applied by air. Some was applied by high clearance ground equipment.

We worked with four different farmers to obtain yields from treated and untreated areas in a field. All fields were treated by air application. Yields were increased, four, six, six, and 12 bushels per acre on the four fields. Some farmers treated too early or too late to obtain a response, and in some cases, rain occurred too soon after application for chemical to work. Several farmers told me they felt the treatment increased their yield and will use it again this year.

Both chemicals will be available in 1977 for farmer use. Equal yield increases should be obtained from the use of either material when applied at the recommended rate and time.

As most farmers know, dinitro is a post-emergence weed killer used in soybeans and some other crops. It is a herbicide that kills on contact when applied at the recommended rate. However, research has shown that a very, very small amount applied to corn at a specific time will generally increase yield five to 10 per cent.

How does the material increase yield? Dr. A. J. Ohlrogge of Purdue University Agronomy Department says it speeds up pollination and silking. This means the grain filling period is lengthened. You also get bigger ears, fuller ears, and fewer barren stalks.

Two dinitro chemicals are labeled for use in Missouri. One is Premerge, made by Dow Chemical Company, and the other is Spark, marketed by Helena chemical Company.

Time of Application

Time of application is critical so apply material at the following growth period. Application should be made between the time the 7th and 12th leaves unroll. By the time the 12th leaf unrolls, it is almost too late. At this time the unemerged tassel will be one-half to seven inches in length. This period is usually between four and 2 weeks prior to tassel emergence, respectively, and corn is three to five feet tall. How can you tell how long the unemerged tassel is? The best way is to split a few stalks and measure the developing tassel. It is too late to treat after corn has tasseled.

I checked a field of the earliest planted corn in the county May 20. Corn was approximately four feet tall, seven leaf stage and the unemerged tassels were three inches long. It is time for this field to be treated soon as weather permits. Our corn got off to a good start and is developing on schedule. The recent rains will push it a little faster. If you plan to treat your cornwith dinitro this year, better start checking the stage of growth and prepare for application.

Rate of Application - Premerge

One pint of premerge dinitro weed killer will treat the foliage of 30 to 50 acres of corn. Application can be made by high- clearance ground sprayer or with an airplane. For ground application, mix four ounces of Premerge in 250 gallons of water or 1.6 ounces per 100 gallons and apply at the rate of 20 to 30 gallons per acre. For aerial application, mix one pint (16 fluid ounces) of Premerge in 150 gallons of water and spray at a delivery rate of 3 to 5 gallons per acre and cover 50 to 30 acres. About 40 acres per pint is an optimum application. an approved surfactant should be used at the rate of one-half pint per 100 gallons of spray solution. If more than ½ pint of surfactant per 100 gallons is used, foliage will be burned and may have an adverse effect on yield.

Rate of Application -Spark

One pint of Spark will cover one acre of corn. It comes premixed in five gallon containers with surfactant and anti-foaming agent already added. Five gallons will cover 40 acres at the rate of one pint per acre. Mix Spark with water and apply at the rate of 20 to 30 gallons per acre with ground equipment or three to five gallons per acre by airplane.

Cost will depend on material used, but should vary from $2.10 to $2.50 per acre. This includes cost of material and aerial application.

Be careful, especially when using Premerge. Forone thing, the low application rate is critical, especially with premerge, which has to be greatly diluted. If too much is applied, you will get foliage burn. This may result in a yield decrease instead of an increase.

You may not want to try this treatment on every acre of corn, but it has shown high probabilities of increasing grain yields five to ten per cent. Remember also, that this treatment is in addition to all other good recommended cultural practices.

Note: This treatment should be used on field corn used for grain only. Treated corn should not be grazed or fed as silage. Contact your local University of Missouri Extension Center if you have questions.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower wants identity of own

NEW YORK (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower is trying to establish her own identity after years of being known only as the daughter of Richard M. Nixon.

"I want to be accepted as a writer," she said in an interview Monday. "I want to feel that I'm a contributing member of society and not just one of the people who has lived in the White House."

At 28, former President Nixon's younger daughter has just written her first book, "Special People," which is to be published June 6.

The book contains six profiles of famous people she has known, including Prince Charles, heir to the British throne; the late Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung and author Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Mrs. Eisenhower is quick to admit that the profiles, which deal with marriages, tragedies and problems in the limelight, reveal almost as much about her as they do about the people she interviewed.

Of Mrs. Lindbergh, an author and widow of Charles A. Lindbergh, Mrs. Eisenhower writes: "We talked about marriage and the seemingly unavoidable mistake of expecting more of the one you love than others, expecting men to meet your needs effortlessly, to share your goals."

Asked if her marriage to David Eisenhower was strained by the public life they led when her father was president, Mrs. Eisenhower said: "Yes, I think it has undergone great changes. I think that the last White House years were a greater strain on us than we realized, and in the decompression period, there were many adjustments to make.

"Not only was it gearing down from being on the phone all day and all of the demands on our time, like mail and public appearances, but it was getting to know each other again."

David graduated from law school last year, and is working on a book about his grandfather, the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He has not yet taken the bar examination, his wife said.

The Eisenhowers recently moved from New York to a three bedroom beach house overlooking the Pacific in Capistrano Beach, Calif., about a 15-minute drive from her parents' retreat in San Clemente.

Mrs. Eisenhower said she is afraid her mother will not recover completely from the stroke she suffered last July. "They say that if you're not recovered within a year, you never have a complete recovery, and it's almost a year now," she said. "Mother has a little difficulty walking and can't use her left hand completely, but her spirit is good."

In a choked voice, she said her mother is in pain most of the time because since her stroke she has suffered from arthritis.

"I ask her how she feels, and she'll say, 'Oh, I'm so sick of myself. I'm not going to complain,'" Mrs. Eisenhower said.

Asked for her reaction to her father's interviews with television personality David Frost, Mrs. Eisenhower set her jaw stubbornly, the way she had when she vehemently defended Nixon during the days before he became the only man in history to resign the presidency.

"I don't want to comment on it," she said. "He expressed himself much better than I could. He has to speak for himself. I'm proud of my father."

A gun store is guarded by an African lion, who stalks the building at night.

resulted in minor injuries to a Poplar Bluff resident, John Michael Mansker, 18, who was taken to Veterans Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The patrol said the accident occurred when the driver of the southbound car attempted to light a cigarette. Mansker took his eyes off the road, drove off the east side of the road and struck a utility pole, cutting it off about 20 feet above ground.

Ronnie Lee Bellomy, 19, of Paragould, Ark., driver of a westbound pickup truck, sustained minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident at 9:15 p.m. Monday on Highway 164, two miles west of Arbyrd.

He was taken to Methodist Hospital in Paragould.

The accident occurred during a heavy rain storm and Bellomy was apparently blinded by the rain. His truck ran off the road into a ditch.

Cape agent censured

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A long-time State Liquor Control Department agent here has been reprimanded and ordered removed from liquor violation investigations because he compromised an inquiry into complaints concerning a Cape Girardeau liquor store.

The action was taken against C. Baldwin Young, an agent for 30 years, because he violated the confidence of a Southeast Missourian reporter who brought the alleged violations to his attention.

Young was suspended without pay from the department for one week while a special department agent and a Missouri Highway Patrol internal bureau investigator conducted an investigation into the incident.

A report of their investigation resulted in the action taken by Director of Public Safety W. Kenneth Carnes and State Liquor Control Supervisor Al Letts, who jointly ordered the internal investigation after the district liquor control supervisor here submitted a report questioning Young's actions.

The state investigation showed that Young went directly to the liquor store owner and asked him about certain complaints which the reporter informed the agent of, although the reporter asked that the complaints be kept in strict confidence so that an investigation could be conducted.

On three occasions, Young discussed the specific complaints with the operator of the store, the report showed, thereby destroying any possibility of a successful investigation.

Among the complaints received by The Missourian in an anonymous letter was that the store was selling liquor after closing hours and on Sunday.

A decision was made to contact the Liquor Control Department district supervisor here to discuss the complaints and ask for the department's cooperation in a joint investigation into the store's operation.

The district supervisor, James Moore, was contacted by the reporter and an appointment was made to meet with him in his office at 11 a.m. Feb. 25.

When the reporter arrived, Young also was at the office and he was asked by the reporter to participate in the meeting with Moore because the store is located in the area handled by Young.

Prior to discussing the complaints with Moore and Young, the reporter asked that the discussion be held in strict confidence. Moore nodded in agreement. Young gave no indication of acknowledging the request.

Both Moore and Young said they would cooperate in a joint investigation by the newspaper and the department. However, no definite arrangements were made at the Feb. 25 meeting.

The report prepared by Moore for former Liquor Control Department Supervisor Robert Stewart showed that on the same afternoon of the meeting, Young went to the operator of the store and asked him about the complaints made to The Missourian.

Moore's report said Young informed him that he had gone to the store owner to discuss some of the complaints. The district supervisor's report said he advised Young that he "should never have said anything" because of the confidential nature of the information and "we could have conducted an investigation to our own satisfaction."

The afternoon of March 14, the reporter again visited the department office at 101 North Kingshighway to ask about any new developments in the case.

Shortly after the reporter arrived, Young received a telephone call from the operator of the store.

Moore's report said that Young informed him after the reporter left that the telephone call was from the store owner and that he wanted to meet with Young to discuss certain legalities involving the sale of liquor.

The topic Young told Moore the store operator wanted to discuss was one of the specific complaints which was contained in the letter to The Missourian.

On the night of the second meeting, Moore informed the reporter of Young's actions and it was decided not to further pursue the investigation at that time because of the apparent compromise.

Moore's report said that on April 15, he and two other agents were observing the store because of a complaint he had received in the meantime concerning sale of liquor to minors.

The report said that the operator of the store and another man came outside, saw them and started walking toward the car from which they were conducting the surveillance.

According to the report, the three agents drove away and the operator of the store and his companion got into a car and began following them. The report said the liquor agents did not see the car again after they drove away.

Moore's report said on April 18 the operator of the store again contacted Young to ask whether there had been any complaints against him. Moore's report said Young informed the store owner he had no one watching the store and had not personally received any complaints.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

By RAYMOND CREWS

Sentimentalist or not, if you ever saw or see the traditional service at the shrine of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery on Memorial Day, you would have or see moist eyes, quivering lips, a tightening of the throat in reverent silence.

The story behind the story of the Unknown Soldier is drama without equal on any stage. It starts first with New York Congressman Hamilton Fish introducing a House Joint Resolution to have an unidentified, killed in action American Soldier returned from France for reinterment at Arlington. The drama continues with Admiral Dewwy's famous Flagship "Olympia" commissioned to return the body to America with Marine Corp escort. In story book manner, the drama relates the care with which anonymity was made certain ... how the selection was made ... how an ordinary American, a Chicago orphan, as a sergeant in France was chosen and ordered to walk into a room and place a bouquet of roses on one of four unidentified caskets .. how Sergeant Younker placed the bouquet and thus made a selection which he later described as God's choice.

The tomb of the Unknown Soldier is more than a symbol of sentiment. It is an American voice which gives thanks to the glory of God that we as Americans, can and do respect the honor and memory of our departed ones, soldiers and civilians alike...

3 thefts occur in Dexter

DEXTER— Three thefts occurred over the weekend, but only change was taken in each incident, police said today.

Reeves Nursing Home, 228 E. Market St., was broken into sometime Sunday and about $15 worth of change taken from the office.

Method of entry was by removing a window from the building.

The window was found Monday on another lot with the glass broken.

Two thefts from houses took place Sunday. As the families were sitting in the front yards, thieves entered the houses through unlocked back doors, police said.

The home of Vernon Gard, 102 Taylor St., was entered Sunday and a purse taken.

A small amount of money was taken from the purse, which was recovered in Wilson's Trailer Court.

The home of Birdie Hearn, 104 W. McCollum St., was entered Sunday and a purse taken.

A small amount of money was taken from the purse, which was recovered at the intersection of Highways 114 and 25.

The purse was not discovered missing until it was recovered, police said.

The houses were located about four to six blocks apart.

Police are still investigating all three thefts.
